Ike Signs Big Housing Bill

Chance To Beat Russia To Punch Spurned By Ike

Decided Against Announcing Halt To U.S. A-Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower deliberately chose to continue testing atomic-hydrogen bombs although he knew the Russians were about to score a certain propaganda victory by announcing a halt to their nuclear tests.

Secretary of State Dulles disclosed Tuesday that Eisenhower and his top advisers made this calculated decision 10 days to two weeks before Russia sprang its announcement Monday.

Dulles told a news conference that in making this decision Eisenhower considered, then rejected an opportunity to beat Russia to the propaganda punch by announcing an American ban on further tests. People in many nations have become worried about the effects of the continued explosions.

Thrust "Deliberately Accepted"

Dulles did not reveal which of Eisenhower's advisers joined in advising him on this decision. But, presumably, it came at a National Security Council meeting at the White House, called to consider intelligence reports the Russians were about to announce their switch.

"We deliberately accepted this propaganda thrust," said Dulles, "knowing that we were going to have to take it rather than do something which we felt was basically unsound."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) told the Senate it apparently was Dulles who advised Eisenhower against trying to beat the Russians to the punch.

Humphrey said "an unbelievable tragedy has befallen the free world." He said most Americans have no appreciation of the scope of the Soviet victory and added: "The United States stands before the world without leadership and without a spokesman."

Meaningless Gesture

Dulles in answering questions assailed the lone-wolf Soviet ban as a gesture timed a few weeks before the United States is to begin previously announced nuclear tests in the Pacific.

He said the Soviet announcement had nothing in it but propaganda because the test ban provides for no outside inspection to make sure the Kremlin keeps its word.

Further, he said, the Soviets can resume testing anytime they want on the grounds that the United States has rejected the Russian bid to join in a similar unsupervised ban.

Driver Jailed After Wild Ride In School Bus

IRONTON, Ohio (AP) — A wild school bus ride through the steep hills at the southern tip of Ohio wound up with the driver in jail and 25 frightened but unharmed children sprawled along several miles of winding road.

The children made their way home on foot after jumping by ones and twos from emergency exits whenever the careening bus slowed on hills and curves.

The driver, James V. McConnell, 58, of Chesapeake, was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 and costs Monday night when he pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated.

All the children had managed to leap to safety before the highway patrol halted the bus. But patrolmen found a stranger, Elmer Floyd of Chesapeake at the wheel—not McConnell.

Floyd told patrolmen he found the bus in a ditch along Greasy Ridge Road with McConnell still at the wheel. Floyd said he was trying to drive the bus back to where it belonged.

The children later told patrolmen they became aware of McConnell's condition when they noticed he was driving with the emergency brake on.

A boy released the brake and that made McConnell angry, the lad told police.

The terrified children begged McConnell to stop and let them off. When he refused, they started jumping.

Stormy Senate Probe Of Strike Violence Ends

Sens. Goldwater (R-Ariz) and Curtis (R-Neb) paid tribute to Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Labor-Management Investigating Committee for the way he has conducted the inquiry.

They said they recognized the strain under which McClellan must have worked at times as the committee investigated first the bitter strike of the United Auto Workers against the Kohler Co., Kohler, Wis., plumbing fixtures makers, and then a UAW strike against the Perfect Circle Corp., Indiana manufacturers of piston rings.

McClellan announced Tuesday afternoon that the last evidence is in on the Perfect Circle strike unless the committee decides to go ahead with an all but abandoned plan to take testimony from William Caldwell, a UAW representative in Indiana.

In what he called a summary statement on the two inquiries, Goldwater told the committee the evidence has shown "a pattern of violence, mass picketing, secondary boycotts and abuse of those who disagree with the UAW."

Goldwater also said that without necessarily condemning the Kohler Co. he thought the evidence also showed some practices by the firm "that I would not have engaged in" as an employer. He did not spell them out.

An attorney for Perfect Circle testified Tuesday that UAW strikers were the first to fire in a gun battle outside the company's New Castle, Ind., plant Oct. 5 1955. UAW witnesses have testified that company men fired the first shots.

The company attorney, Clyde Hoffman, also challenged the UAW claim that a demonstration preceding the riot was intended to be a peaceful one.

Failures Decrease

NEW YORK (AP)—Dun & Bradstreet Tuesday reported a decrease from 357 to 327 in the number of business failures last week compared to the previous seven days. The current total, lowest in five weeks, compared with 290 in the same week last year.

Labor Vs. Labor Hearing Held By Labor Board

WASHINGTON (AP)—Like many another employer, the AFL-CIO Tuesday was forced to defend its labor relations record before a federal agency.

The giant labor federation ran into some embarrassing questions from the National Labor Relations Board on why, as an employer, it balks at bargaining with a union formed by AFL-CIO organizers.

The five NLRB members plied the AFL-CIO's attorney with questions before taking under advisement whether the agency should order an election among the organizers to give them a chance to assert bargaining rights.

"Why," asked NLRB member Phillip Ray Rodgers, "does the AFL-CIO take the position it doesn't want to bargain with a union of its own organizers?"

The AFL-CIO's general counsel, J. Albert Woll, said the federation considers the organizers managerial-type employes lacking union bargaining rights accorded most workers under federal law.

Mitchell J. Cooper, representing the field representatives federation, the Organizers' Union, said the AFL-CIO itself has campaigned to organize many similar workers into unions.

It is an AFL-CIO contention, Woll said, that if organizers of the federation and its unions are unionized, they would form power blocs that could vie for political control within unions.

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers began bargaining with Chrysler Corp. on a new contract Tuesday.

Negotiations at Ford Motor Co. entered the second day. Talks which got under way at General Motors Corp. a week ago are in recess until April 8 while the company studies union demands.

Plane Carrying 73 Lands Safely After Engine Fire

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—A Delta Air Lines DC7 with 68 passengers and five crew members aboard made an emergency landing at St. Lucie Airport here Tuesday without injury to passengers or plane.

Pilot Capt. John W. Bondurant and copilot F. C. Stevens, both of Miami, would make no statement to newsmen.

Several passengers said it was their second attempt to fly to Chicago during the morning.

The first plane, a DC6, left Miami about 10 a.m. but was forced to turn back because of engine trouble.

Passengers said they then boarded a DC7 and departed Miami about noon.

About eight miles north of Stuart, while flying at 20,000 feet, the No. 3 engine caught fire and the plane landed at the airport here a few minutes later.

No Sign Of Panic As 1,200 Saved From Blazing Ship

LONDON (AP)—Terse radio messages from a British freighter Tuesday described the dramatic rescue of 1,200 persons from a blazing Norwegian immigrant ship in the Indian Ocean.

Passengers and crew members of the 9,786-ton Skaubryn were rescued by the British freighter City of Sydney, and transferred to the Italian liner Roma. The Roma rushed toward the British Red Sea port of Aden Tuesday night.

The City of Sydney reported only one casualty—a German who died of a heart attack in a lifeboat—in one of the biggest sea rescues recorded.

An engine room explosion rocked the Skaubryn as she sailed toward Australia through waters east of Africa Monday night. The vessel soon was an island of flame.

SOS messages brought the City of Sydney to the rescue. The 1,011 migrants - mostly Germans and Matlese—were ordered into lifeboats by Capt. Alf Haakon Feste.

The Skaubryn was still afloat, the message added, but was completely gutted. Black smoke poured from the hull, left drifting about 300 miles southeast of the island of Socotra.

With survivors crowded onto the deck under a broiling tropical sun, the City of Sydney raced to meet the Roma. The City of Sydney normally carries only 66 Indian crewmen and 20 officers, and food and water were running short.

Late in the afternoon all survivors were transferred safely to the more spacious Roma, which headed toward Aden.

Cuban Rebels Launch First Phase Of War

Guerrillas Attack Moving Transport, Communications

HAVANA (AP)—Rebel chief Fidel Castro launched a first phase of his so-called total war against President Fulgencio Batista Tuesday. His men struck sharp blows against communications and transportation in Oriente Province.

Roving guerrilla bands fired without warning on all moving highway and rail transport and virtually paralyzed communications between Santiago and the remainder of eastern Cuba.

Rebel sources in Havana said the all-out war would be extended to all of Cuba after midnight Saturday. That is the deadline Castro has set for Batista to quit.

Martial Law Possible

The Batista government reacted by arming itself with emergency powers that may lead to martial law and mass arrests.

In the Santiago area of southeast Cuba most bus line and rail workers left their jobs, fearing they would be shot if they attempted to move vehicles and trains.

Rebels cut telegraph communications between Santiago and provincial towns and cities.

Eight big electric power line towers were blown up in Oriente Province. Rebels spread oil, tacks and nails on roadways.

Clashes between rebel and government troops were reported in areas near Santiago, Varacoa and Holguin.

Other Workers Leave Jobs

Some workers besides those in transport began leaving their jobs in Oriente, even before the signal for a general strike Castro has said he will order.

The first phase of the increased rebel activity was concentrated in Oriente, where Castro has made his headquarters in his 16-month-old fight against the Batista regime. Communications, transport and other business and industrial enterprises continued to operate normally in Havana and surrounding areas.

Batista's government, which previously had revoked constitutional guarantees, obtained from Congress full authority to do whatever necessary to smash the rebellion.

Transit Strike Cripples France

PARIS (AP)—Many a Frenchman couldn't get his bus to catch his train that wasn't running or his plane that wasn't flying. His wife pouted over the low flame on the gas stove and the garbage piled up in the trash can.

It was another one of those 24-hour strikes. A million French workers were protesting the high cost of living. Perhaps three million more stayed home because they were unable to get to work.

Walking off their jobs were rail and other transportation workers, gas and electric employes, and many others.

The French-owned railway estimated 95 per cent of its employes obeyed the Tuesday strike order. Only a dozen trains ran throughout the country—but they were almost empty.

In Paris, military trucks were put into service.

Employes of the nationalized gas and electricity companies walked out, resulting in cutting the gas pressure by about half. Distribution of electricity was not affected.

Security personnel at the big Orly Airport south of Paris joined in the strike. Most airline companies canceled flights.

Municipal workers in Paris also struck and the French cleanliness month got off to a bad start. Garbage was not collected and streets were not swept.

Cubans Go On Hunger Strike In TV Station

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ten Cubans lounged in the lobby of television station WTVJ Tuesday and said they won't eat until 36 other Cubans and Cuban-Americans are released from jail in Brownsville, Tex.

Nine youths had invaded the lobby and a tenth later joined the group. After speaking their piece, the nine spent the night sleeping under blankets.

Luis Dominguez, 21, said they will not eat until those held in Brownsville on arms - running charges are released. Those in Texas also are on a hunger strike.

Lee Ruwitch, WTVJ vice president and general manager, said he had no objection to the group remaining in the lobby if there was no disorder.

No Foolin', They'll Live Life Of Riley

Coal miner Thomas Riley, 58, bestows big kisses on his wife, Elizabeth Heather Riley, 57, after they arrived in London yesterday from the mining town of Horden to collect their 26 million to one shot—$585,421 they won for a two-cent investment in Britain's soccer pool. And the money is tax free! They plan to come to the U.S. to visit a polio-crippled grandson in Canton, Ohio.

British Leader Refuses To Halt Nuclear Tests

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan resisted pressure from some Laborites and refused Tuesday to follow Russia's lead in announcing a ban on nuclear weapons tests.

Macmillan held fast to the Western position that test suspensions are a subject for international negotiation in which safeguards against cheating can be worked out.

He told the House of Commons that Britain has put her faith in the prospect that a summit conference would settle once and for all the problems of nuclear tests and disarmament.

A movement is growing in Britain for this nation to abandon nuclear weapons completely. "Ban the bomb" demonstrations are expected during the Easter weekend.

Some Laborites support the movement, but the official party leadership does not. Labor leaders Hugh Gaitskell and Aneurin Bevin have pressed Macmillan to make a positive response to the Soviet move, however.

But Macmillan said: "I note that the Russian announcement was timed to come after the completion of an extensive and accelerated series of Russian tests and just before a series of American tests already announced by the U.S. government — and when the current series of British tests is not completed.

"We have long been anxious, as our proposals have shown, to negotiate an agreement on disarmament which will include arrangements for the ending or suspension of tests under proper conditions, at a suitable date and with agreement on an inspection system.

"Her Majesty's government, with other Western powers, suggested as long ago as July the setting up of an expert committee to work out an inspection system. That offer has been frequently repeated since and still stands."

Heiress, Clerk Wed For Second Time

NEW YORK (AP) — A teen-aged British heiress and her shipping clerk sweetheart were married Tuesday for the second time in two months. They explained they just wanted to be sure everything was legal.

The first wedding of Dominic Elwes, son of a British portrait painter, and the former Tessa Kennedy was performed Jan. 27 in Havana by a Cuban notary public, they said.

Elwes told newsmen the ceremony had been in Spanish and they couldn't understand a word of it. He added, "Sometime a situation might come up where you'd want a ceremony about which there could be no question," although he said the Havana wedding was legal and binding.

British Couple Hits Jackpot For Record $585,421

LONDON (AP)—The Riley family from the coal mining town of Horden in County Durham came to London Tuesday to collect more than half a million dollars won on a two cent investment in a soccer pool. It was a 26 million to 1 shot.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Riley, who plan a trip to the United States to visit a grandson crippled by polio, won a world record prize of $585,421 on last Saturday's soccer games. In England such winnings are tax free.

Every Saturday about eight million Britons try their luck on the pools. They attempt to pick eight games which will end in tie scores.

There were only eight ties and nobody picked all of them, but the 58-year-old Riley and his 57-year-old wife hit the jackpot by selecting seven.

All the Rileys—17 of them including Mrs. Riley's 82-year-old mother—came 200 miles to London to collect the riches.

"We knew it was going to be a lot of money," said miner Riley, "but we didn't expect that much. We're in a fog."

Atlas Almost Gets Off Ground

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force lit the tail of the mighty Atlas ICBM Tuesday but dramatically cut off the rocket engines a second or two before the big bird could get off the ground.

The Air Force said the test will be rescheduled as soon as possible. Atlas experts looked for another launching attempt before the week was out.

The malfunction was blamed on one of the small vernier rocket motors used for precision work—to achieve the exact velocity required for a given trajectory — after the three powerful main engines have accomplished their mission.

Pentagon Plan Shown To GOP Leaders By Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration plans to reorganize the Defense Department and create a civilian agency for nonmilitary space projects were unveiled Tuesday for GOP congressional leaders.

President Eisenhower laid the controversial proposals before the Republican leaders at their weekly White House conference. Congressional approval will be necessary.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said it was Eisenhower's original intention to brief both Republicans and Democrats but the Democrats turned down the invitation.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said he understood the bid was extended to the bipartisan Senate-House Committee on Outer Space. He said that rather than have the committee go to the White House, it was decided to have administration officials come to Capitol Hill.

The Republican leaders declined to give any details of the Pentagon reorganization plan, which reportedly would strengthen the authority of the secretary of defense and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Senate GOP Leader Knowland of California pronounced it a considerable improvement over the present situation.

Knowland spoke more freely about the proposed space agency. He said it would have independent status like the Atomic Energy Commission.

Eisenhower intends to send Congress a special message on the subject. Hagerty said the President also hopes to send up a separate message on Pentagon reorganization, though it may not be ready before Congress begins its Easter recess Thursday.

Rep. Burdick Will Quit House Race If Son Runs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Usher L. Burdick (R-ND) said Tuesday he wants no part of a father-son contest for the House and will withdraw from seeking reelection if his son Quentin runs.

Earlier at Bismarck, N.D., the younger Burdick was endorsed by the Nonpartisan League for the House seat his father holds. Quentin Burdick was on a slate to be filed in the Democratic primary.

The elder Burdick, 79 and a recent bridegroom, returned to Washington Tuesday by train from North Dakota. He is serving his 20th year in the House.

Last weekend the Congressman withdrew his name for consideration at the North Dakota convention after that group had refused to endorse Sen. Langer (R-ND) for reelection.

Before leaving for Washington, however, Rep. Burdick told newsmen he planned to seek the Republican nomination in the June 24 primary.

But Tuesday he said definitely that if his son runs for the House, he will withdraw from the race.

An aide, who made the announcement, said Burdick believes "it is too personal a thing to run against his own son," even though the two would seek the nomination in different primaries.

Langer, serving his 18th year in the Senate, said he will seek election to a fourth term even though the Republican convention endorsed Lt. Gov. Clyde Duffy.

"This is the kind of fight I relish and in which I know thousands of citizens will join me," Langer said.

Public Works Measure Hits Senate Snag

Action Postponed To April 14; Roads Bill Clears Hurdle

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower signed the $1,850,000,000 housing bill Tuesday and the highway construction bill got past an important hurdle.

But action on a third important bill aimed at offsetting the recession, a proposal to grant up to a billion dollars in loans for municipal public works, was delayed in the Senate until April 14.

Knowland and other Republicans contended such a major measure should not be acted upon hastily. They also said the House doesn't intend to act until after Congress' Easter vacation.

The highway bill was agreed on by Senate-House conferees in a form retaining a Senate provision for control of billboards on the interstate network of roads. The measure is counted on to provide 88,000 new jobs this year. It is designed to pour nearly an additional two billion dollars in federal-state funds into roadbuilding this year.

Baruch Says Tax Cut Folly

The three major actions on the anti-recession front came, by coincidence, on a day that elder statesman Bernard Baruch pleaded against red-ink financing and denounced talk of a tax reduction as folly.

Eisenhower mixed approbation and criticism in a message to Congress saying he was signing the housing bill, the first major measure of this congressional session directed against the economic slump.

The President indicated, without saying it in so many words, that he thought the bill's provision for a 4¾ per cent interest rate on GI mortgages was too low. He said the rate should be sufficiently flexible to attract private capital.

At the same time, he said some of its provisions will promote a higher level of economic activity.

The bill makes new funds available for mortgages, lowers down payments on some government-insured mortgages and extends the home loan program another two years.

Republicans Object

Senate debate on the public works bill, which would set up loans to muncipalities all over the country, opened over Republican objections.

Republican senators voted 22-4 in favor of delaying consideration until after the 10-day congressional recess that begins Thursday. Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said the White House was opposed to rushing the bill through, that the administration was concerned about its effect on the national debt limit.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont), acting Democratic leader, conceded the Republicans' argument for taking things slower had a good deal of merit. But he added he would be disappointed if the Senate didn't reach a vote on it tomorrow.

This would direct federal agencies to place orders quickly for up to 840 million dollars worth of supplies and equipment they otherwise might not buy for months to come.

Suspended Student Attacks Instructor

NEW YORK (AP) — A 17-year-old suspended student returned to school Tuesday and punched an automobile mechanics teacher in the eye and face.

The student, Curtis Tait, a Negro, was arrested on a charge of simple assault after grappling with the teacher, Frank Keegan, 52, in a classroom at Samuel Gompers Vocational High School in the Bronx.

Police said Tait turned up in the mechanics class, shined his shoes with a school towel intended for the students' hands and faces and disrupted the class with conversation.

Keegan said Tait refused to leave and the teacher took him by the arms and attempted to escort him from the classroom.

They grappled, police quoted the teacher as saying, and the teacher was punched in the eye and face before a student came to his aid and Tait was subdued.

HAVANA (AP)—Rebel chief Fidel Castro launched a first phase of his so-called total war against President Fulgencio Batista Tuesday. His men struck sharp blows against communications and transportation in Oriente Province.

Roving guerrilla bands fired without warning on all moving highway and rail transport and virtually paralyzed communications between Santiago and the remainder of eastern Cuba.

Rebel sources in Havana said the all-out war would be extended to all of Cuba after midnight Saturday. That is the deadline Castro has set for Batista to quit.

Martial Law Possible

The Batista government reacted by arming itself with emergency powers that may lead to martial law and mass arrests.

In the Santiago area of southeast Cuba most bus line and rail workers left their jobs, fearing they would be shot if they attempted to move vehicles and trains.

Rebels cut telegraph communications between Santiago and provincial towns and cities.

Eight big electric power line towers were blown up in Oriente Province. Rebels spread oil, tacks and nails on roadways.

Clashes between rebel and government troops were reported in areas near Santiago, Varacoa and Holguin.

Other Workers Leave Jobs

Some workers besides those in transport began leaving their jobs in Oriente, even before the signal for a general strike Castro has said he will order.

The first phase of the increased rebel activity was concentrated in Oriente, where Castro has made his headquarters in his 16-month-old fight against the Batista regime. Communications, transport and other business and industrial enterprises continued to operate normally in Havana and surrounding areas.

Batista's government, which previously had revoked constitutional guarantees, obtained from Congress full authority to do whatever necessary to smash the rebellion.

Transit Strike Cripples France

PARIS (AP)—Many a Frenchman couldn't get his bus to catch his train that wasn't running or his plane that wasn't flying. His wife pouted over the low flame on the gas stove and the garbage piled up in the trash can.

It was another one of those 24-hour strikes. A million French workers were protesting the high cost of living. Perhaps three million more stayed home because they were unable to get to work.

Walking off their jobs were rail and other transportation workers, gas and electric employes, and many others.

The French-owned railway estimated 95 per cent of its employes obeyed the Tuesday strike order. Only a dozen trains ran throughout the country—but they were almost empty.

In Paris, military trucks were put into service.

Employes of the nationalized gas and electricity companies walked out, resulting in cutting the gas pressure by about half. Distribution of electricity was not affected.

Security personnel at the big Orly Airport south of Paris joined in the strike. Most airline companies canceled flights.

Municipal workers in Paris also struck and the French cleanliness month got off to a bad start. Garbage was not collected and streets were not swept.

Cubans Go On Hunger Strike In TV Station

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ten Cubans lounged in the lobby of television station WTVJ Tuesday and said they won't eat until 36 other Cubans and Cuban-Americans are released from jail in Brownsville, Tex.

Nine youths had invaded the lobby and a tenth later joined the group. After speaking their piece, the nine spent the night sleeping under blankets.

Luis Dominguez, 21, said they will not eat until those held in Brownsville on arms - running charges are released. Those in Texas also are on a hunger strike.

Lee Ruwitch, WTVJ vice president and general manager, said he had no objection to the group remaining in the lobby if there was no disorder.

No Foolin', They'll Live Life Of Riley

Coal miner Thomas Riley, 58, bestows big kisses on his wife, Elizabeth Heather Riley, 57, after they arrived in London yesterday from the mining town of Horden to collect their 26 million to one shot—$585,421 they won for a two-cent investment in Britain's soccer pool. And the money is tax free! They plan to come to the U.S. to visit a polio-crippled grandson in Canton, Ohio.

British Leader Refuses To Halt Nuclear Tests

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan resisted pressure from some Laborites and refused Tuesday to follow Russia's lead in announcing a ban on nuclear weapons tests.

Macmillan held fast to the Western position that test suspensions are a subject for international negotiation in which safeguards against cheating can be worked out.

He told the House of Commons that Britain has put her faith in the prospect that a summit conference would settle once and for all the problems of nuclear tests and disarmament.

A movement is growing in Britain for this nation to abandon nuclear weapons completely. "Ban the bomb" demonstrations are expected during the Easter weekend.

Some Laborites support the movement, but the official party leadership does not. Labor leaders Hugh Gaitskell and Aneurin Bevin have pressed Macmillan to make a positive response to the Soviet move, however.

But Macmillan said: "I note that the Russian announcement was timed to come after the completion of an extensive and accelerated series of Russian tests and just before a series of American tests already announced by the U.S. government — and when the current series of British tests is not completed.

"We have long been anxious, as our proposals have shown, to negotiate an agreement on disarmament which will include arrangements for the ending or suspension of tests under proper conditions, at a suitable date and with agreement on an inspection system.

"Her Majesty's government, with other Western powers, suggested as long ago as July the setting up of an expert committee to work out an inspection system. That offer has been frequently repeated since and still stands."

Heiress, Clerk Wed For Second Time

NEW YORK (AP) — A teen-aged British heiress and her shipping clerk sweetheart were married Tuesday for the second time in two months. They explained they just wanted to be sure everything was legal.

The first wedding of Dominic Elwes, son of a British portrait painter, and the former Tessa Kennedy was performed Jan. 27 in Havana by a Cuban notary public, they said.

Elwes told newsmen the ceremony had been in Spanish and they couldn't understand a word of it. He added, "Sometime a situation might come up where you'd want a ceremony about which there could be no question," although he said the Havana wedding was legal and binding.

British Couple Hits Jackpot For Record $585,421

LONDON (AP)—The Riley family from the coal mining town of Horden in County Durham came to London Tuesday to collect more than half a million dollars won on a two cent investment in a soccer pool. It was a 26 million to 1 shot.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Riley, who plan a trip to the United States to visit a grandson crippled by polio, won a world record prize of $585,421 on last Saturday's soccer games. In England such winnings are tax free.

Every Saturday about eight million Britons try their luck on the pools. They attempt to pick eight games which will end in tie scores.

There were only eight ties and nobody picked all of them, but the 58-year-old Riley and his 57-year-old wife hit the jackpot by selecting seven.

All the Rileys—17 of them including Mrs. Riley's 82-year-old mother—came 200 miles to London to collect the riches.

"We knew it was going to be a lot of money," said miner Riley, "but we didn't expect that much. We're in a fog."

Atlas Almost Gets Off Ground

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force lit the tail of the mighty Atlas ICBM Tuesday but dramatically cut off the rocket engines a second or two before the big bird could get off the ground.

The Air Force said the test will be rescheduled as soon as possible. Atlas experts looked for another launching attempt before the week was out.

The malfunction was blamed on one of the small vernier rocket motors used for precision work—to achieve the exact velocity required for a given trajectory — after the three powerful main engines have accomplished their mission.

Pentagon Plan Shown To GOP Leaders By Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration plans to reorganize the Defense Department and create a civilian agency for nonmilitary space projects were unveiled Tuesday for GOP congressional leaders.

President Eisenhower laid the controversial proposals before the Republican leaders at their weekly White House conference. Congressional approval will be necessary.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said it was Eisenhower's original intention to brief both Republicans and Democrats but the Democrats turned down the invitation.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) said he understood the bid was extended to the bipartisan Senate-House Committee on Outer Space. He said that rather than have the committee go to the White House, it was decided to have administration officials come to Capitol Hill.

The Republican leaders declined to give any details of the Pentagon reorganization plan, which reportedly would strengthen the authority of the secretary of defense and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Senate GOP Leader Knowland of California pronounced it a considerable improvement over the present situation.

Knowland spoke more freely about the proposed space agency. He said it would have independent status like the Atomic Energy Commission.

Eisenhower intends to send Congress a special message on the subject. Hagerty said the President also hopes to send up a separate message on Pentagon reorganization, though it may not be ready before Congress begins its Easter recess Thursday.

Rep. Burdick Will Quit House Race If Son Runs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Usher L. Burdick (R-ND) said Tuesday he wants no part of a father-son contest for the House and will withdraw from seeking reelection if his son Quentin runs.

Earlier at Bismarck, N.D., the younger Burdick was endorsed by the Nonpartisan League for the House seat his father holds. Quentin Burdick was on a slate to be filed in the Democratic primary.

The elder Burdick, 79 and a recent bridegroom, returned to Washington Tuesday by train from North Dakota. He is serving his 20th year in the House.

Last weekend the Congressman withdrew his name for consideration at the North Dakota convention after that group had refused to endorse Sen. Langer (R-ND) for reelection.

Before leaving for Washington, however, Rep. Burdick told newsmen he planned to seek the Republican nomination in the June 24 primary.

But Tuesday he said definitely that if his son runs for the House, he will withdraw from the race.

An aide, who made the announcement, said Burdick believes "it is too personal a thing to run against his own son," even though the two would seek the nomination in different primaries.

Langer, serving his 18th year in the Senate, said he will seek election to a fourth term even though the Republican convention endorsed Lt. Gov. Clyde Duffy.

"This is the kind of fight I relish and in which I know thousands of citizens will join me," Langer said.

Public Works Measure Hits Senate Snag

Action Postponed To April 14; Roads Bill Clears Hurdle

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower signed the $1,850,000,000 housing bill Tuesday and the highway construction bill got past an important hurdle.

But action on a third important bill aimed at offsetting the recession, a proposal to grant up to a billion dollars in loans for municipal public works, was delayed in the Senate until April 14.

Knowland and other Republicans contended such a major measure should not be acted upon hastily. They also said the House doesn't intend to act until after Congress' Easter vacation.

The highway bill was agreed on by Senate-House conferees in a form retaining a Senate provision for control of billboards on the interstate network of roads. The measure is counted on to provide 88,000 new jobs this year. It is designed to pour nearly an additional two billion dollars in federal-state funds into roadbuilding this year.

Baruch Says Tax Cut Folly

The three major actions on the anti-recession front came, by coincidence, on a day that elder statesman Bernard Baruch pleaded against red-ink financing and denounced talk of a tax reduction as folly.

Eisenhower mixed approbation and criticism in a message to Congress saying he was signing the housing bill, the first major measure of this congressional session directed against the economic slump.

The President indicated, without saying it in so many words, that he thought the bill's provision for a 4¼ per cent interest rate on GI mortgages was too low. He said the rate should be sufficiently flexible to attract private capital.

At the same time, he said some of its provisions will promote a higher level of economic activity.

The bill makes new funds available for mortgages, lowers down payments on some government-insured mortgages and extends the home loan program another two years.

Republicans Object

Senate debate on the public works bill, which would set up loans to muncipalities all over the country, opened over Republican objections.

Republican senators voted 22-4 in favor of delaying consideration until after the 10-day congressional recess that begins Thursday. Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said the White House was opposed to rushing the bill through, that the administration was concerned about its effect on the national debt limit.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont), acting Democratic leader, conceded the Republicans' argument for taking things slower had a good deal of merit. But he added he would be disappointed if the Senate didn't reach a vote on it tomorrow.

This would direct federal agencies to place orders quickly for up to 840 million dollars worth of supplies and equipment they otherwise might not buy for months to come.

Suspended Student Attacks Instructor

NEW YORK (AP) — A 17-year-old suspended student returned to school Tuesday and punched an automobile mechanics teacher in the eye and face.

The student, Curtis Tait, a Negro, was arrested on a charge of simple assault after grappling with the teacher, Frank Keegan, 52, in a classroom at Samuel Gompers Vocational High School in the Bronx.

Police said Tait turned up in the mechanics class, shined his shoes with a school towel intended for the students' hands and faces and disrupted the class with conversation.

Keegan said Tait refused to leave and the teacher took him by the arms and attempted to escort him from the classroom.

They grappled, police quoted the teacher as saying, and the teacher was punched in the eye and face before a student came to his aid and Tait was subdued.

W.Va. Ready To Contract For Mapping 3 Counties In Property Appraisal

CHARLESTON (AP) — The state is ready to award contracts for aerial photographing of Marion, Marshall and Berkeley counties and preparation of tax maps from the photographs.

The Tax Department has tentatively accepted proposals of aerial mapping firms as to the three counties, and the county courts have concurred. The contracts are expected to be signed within a few days.

They will be the first contracts awarded in carrying out requirements of an act of the 1958 Legislature. It calls for appraisal, in the next three years, of all real and personal property in West Virginia, except that owned by public utilities.

Under the same act, the tax commissioner is required to establish a permanent property records system, including tax maps, for each county. The mapping phase is being undertaken ahead of the property appraisals.

E. G. Haislop, director of equalization in the Tax Department, said these proposals for mapping have been tentatively accepted:

Marion County, Emmett M. Rogers of Waynesburg, Pa., $87,550; Marshall County, American Air Surveys, Inc. of Pittsburgh, $85,500, and Berkeley County, Keystone Mapping Co. of York, Pa., $59,155.

Haislop explained that the Marion proposal is for mapping rural areas only. The city of Fairmont already has been mapped under a program intitiated by the county.

The dollar amounts of the proposals are based upon estimates by Haislop's office of the number of parcels of property to be mapped, their area, and the distribution as between rural and urban. The costs in the final contracts may vary somewhat from the figures tentatively accepted.

Because of spring foliage, the aerial phase of the work must be completed by mid-April. Haislop hopes to be able to have about 10 counties mapped this spring.

Offers from aerial mapping firms for mapping Tyler, Upshur, Wetzel and Cabell counties have been received, but the Tax Department has not yet consulted with the county courts about them. Offers also have been solicited from mapping firms as to Greenbrier, Putnam and Mason counties, but none has yet been received.

Counties in which to make the first efforts were chosen on the basis of helping those which stand to lose state school aid next year under present property appraisals and rewarding counties which have gone ahead on their own initiative with upgrading of property assessments.

The legislative act provides for payment by the state of 90 per cent of the cost of the appraisal and mapping program. Counties will pay the rest.

Last PRR Train Run Plus One

SALISBURY (AP)—It was no April fool joke when the train went barreling down the Eastern Shore today from Delmar, Del., to Cape Charles, Va.

Residents along the tracks, recalling the last scheduled run on the Pennsylvania Railroad line was made Jan. 12, were suspicious.

But railroad officials explained the train—consisting of a locomotive and two cars—was merely restored to action to carry company officers on an inspection trip.

Chambersburg Firm Low On SRC Contract

BALTIMORE (AP) — E. D. Plummer and Sons of Chambersburg, Pa. was the apparently low bidder Tuesday on a State Roads Commission contract for a construction project in Hagerstown, Md.

Plummer bid $657,187.25 on the job which involves construction of a Pennsylvania Railroad and Western Maryland Railway embankment and retaining walls. The project runs about one mile from points south of Antietam street to points north of Church street.

M. J. Grove Lime Co. of Lime Kiln, Md., was second low bidder with $696,157. Two other bids were as high as $741,715.05.

Baltimore, Five Counties Plan Uniform Pay To End Competition For Teachers

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Five counties and Baltimore City are trying to establish the same starting salary for srhool teachers in an effort to eliminate competitive bidding for their services, a county official said Tuesday.

Edward R. Lonergan, county manager of Anne Arundel County, said officials of the counties surrounding Baltimore and Washington have agreed that $4,000 would be an "acceptable minimum" for starting teachers.

Baltimore City and Baltimore County now pay that figure and the other counties will attempt to bring their scales up to it, Lonergan said.

This would mean a $400 pay boost over present scales in Anne Arundel and Howard Counties and $200 each in Montgomery and Prince Georges. Most of the cost would be absorbed through a teacher pay raise approved by the Maryland Legislature.

The urban counties have been competing annually for new school teachers, Longergan said, and the move toward the same salary minimum is an effort to lessen their recruiting problems. Maximum salaries would still vary but Lonergan said these too may be standardized eventually.

Representatives of four of the counties and Baltimore City got together at a special meeting of the State Assn. of County Commissioners Friday night to discuss the problem.

"It was unanimously agreed that $4,000 was the acceptable starting salary for teachers," Lonergan said Tuesday in a report on the meeting to the board of County Commissioners of Anne Arundel County.

He said Prince Georges and Howard County officials indicated they would pay that figure next school year and that it was believed Montgomery County was in the process of approving a $4,000 starting salary.

Lonergan said he understood a similar move to stop area competition for teachers is under way between officials of Washington, Carroll, Frederick and Harford counties.

14 Of 35 Cuban Rebel Fasters In Hospital

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Twenty-one weakened but determined Cuban rebel sympathizers continued a prolonged hunger strike at the county jail Tuesday. Fourteen were hospitalized from the effects of six days of not eating and were being fed intravenously. Another was returned to jail from the hospital.

Arnaldo G. Barron, 34, Cuban-born New Yorker and leader of the group, announced the hunger strike shortly after the armed band was arrested by U.S. officials last Thursday. He said the fast was in protest of what he called U.S. arm shipments to government forces in Cuba.

Hundreds Flee Flood Waters In California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Heavy rainfall on already saturated ground Tuesday sent flood waters surging into Alviso, one of California's oldest settlements, spread muck and rock over coastal highways and caused threatening rises in northern California rivers.

The 900 residents of Alviso, 35 miles southeast of San Francisco on the shore of San Francisco Bay, were being evacuated. Waters of the Guadalupe River had inundated the town.

Evacuated persons took refuge in nearby San Jose and other communities.

Eight rivers were bankfull or overflowing as the runoff coursed to the Pacific Ocean. They are the Guadalupe, Kaweah, St. Johns, San Joaquin, Fresno, Salinas, Chowchilla and Carmel Valley, on the northern coast.

Lowlanders also were worried about the deep snowpack on California's spinal column of high mountains. A sudden warm spell could start it melting, adding millions of tons of water to the present river load.

Also, the Weather Bureau said a new rainstorm was moving in rapidly from the Pacific and would strike Wednesday.

Torrential rains and gale-like winds uprooted trees and tore off roofs in the Los Angeles area, and the forecast there also was for more stormy weather.

More than an inch of rain fell in downtown Los Angeles and nearly double that in its suburbs. Winds of more than 40 m.p.h. whipped the area.

Diefenbaker's Party Program Receives Boost

TORONTO (AP)—The overwhelming election victory Monday of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker is viewed as solid public endorsement of his Conservative party's program of national development.

It also is expected to accelerate his drive to divert a substantial share of Canadian trade to Britain and to reduce as much as possible Canada's economic dependence on the United States.

These were major planks in his platform. With the top-heavy Conservative majority in the House of Commons—209 out of 265 seats—he has a mandate to carry out his promises.

The 62-year - old Diefenbaker often struck a responsive chord during the campaign when he hit at U. S. policies and blasted what he called domination and interference. This line was so successful that the Liberal leader, Lester B. Pearson, long known as a close friend of the United States, also turned his fire on U. S. policies.

The sort of things that seemed to annoy Canadians most were U. S restrictions on oil imports, dumping American agricultural products on Canadian market outlets, and processing Canadian raw materials in the United States.

One of the hot issues in the closing days of the campaign was a decision by U.S Ford executives vetoing the export of 1,000 passenger cars to Red China by Ford of Canada.

Both Diefenbaker and Pearson called for an investigation.

Okla. Rat Makes Fatal Plane Trip

Fatal trip though it was, it was quite a distinction for a rodent. The rat was the only passenger.

A crew at the Tulsa Municipal Airport saw the animal run aboard just before the plane was to load 11 passengers for a flight to Amarillo. No one could find the rat.

The passengers didn't get aboard. Instead, the plane was brought to Meacham Field, where Central Airlines has its maintenance headquarters.

A substitute plane went to Tulsa. The Amarillo flight was delayed about two hours.

Public Health Service employes put poison in the rat-bearing plane here last night and sealed it up.

At 8 a.m. today the rat disembarked. It was dangling by its tail in the grip of a maintenance man.

Erstwhile Fugitive Waives Extradition

City detectives said Tennessee authorities arrived here today and would leave for Nashville tomorrow morning with the 43-year-old convicted slayer.

The FBI said McCracken gave up without resistance only 24 hours after he had been put on the 10 most wanted list. A resident saw his picture in a Baltimore newspaper and notified the FBI.

Mail Floods VA For 'Dividends'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration said Tuesday it is being flooded with mail because of an incorrect report that it has 60 million dollars in unclaimed dividends on World War II GI life insurance policies.

The report, emanating from Kentucky, has brought a deluge of postcard requests for the nonexistent dividends, VA said in a statement.

A spokesman said an estimated 1,500 postcards arrived Monday, most of them from Kentucky but some from New York and Texas.

He said the report was known to have been published in a Kentucky newspaper.

VA's statement said the report may have started from the recent cancellation of 63,000 undeliverable National Service Life Insurance dividend checks.

These checks, which totaled less than three million dollars, were returned to VA because veterans had moved without leaving a change of address notice with the post office, VA said.

Godwin told reporters afterward that no date had been set for a get-together with the Maryland five. Gov. Almond will notify Maryland Gov. McKeldin that the Virginia group is organized and ready to confer.

Fire Again Strikes Slayer-Ghoul's Farm

The blaze burned over 40 acres of grass on the extreme west end of the farm formerly owned by the handyman who has been committed to the Central State Hospital for the Criminal Insane. His house was destroyed by fire March 20.

Elmo Ueeck, a neighbor, plowed a furrow around the fire to contain the blaze. The Plainfield Fire Department and Conservation Department employes also helped fight the blaze.

The farm, located on the outskirts of this central Wisconsin community, was sold at auction Sunday.

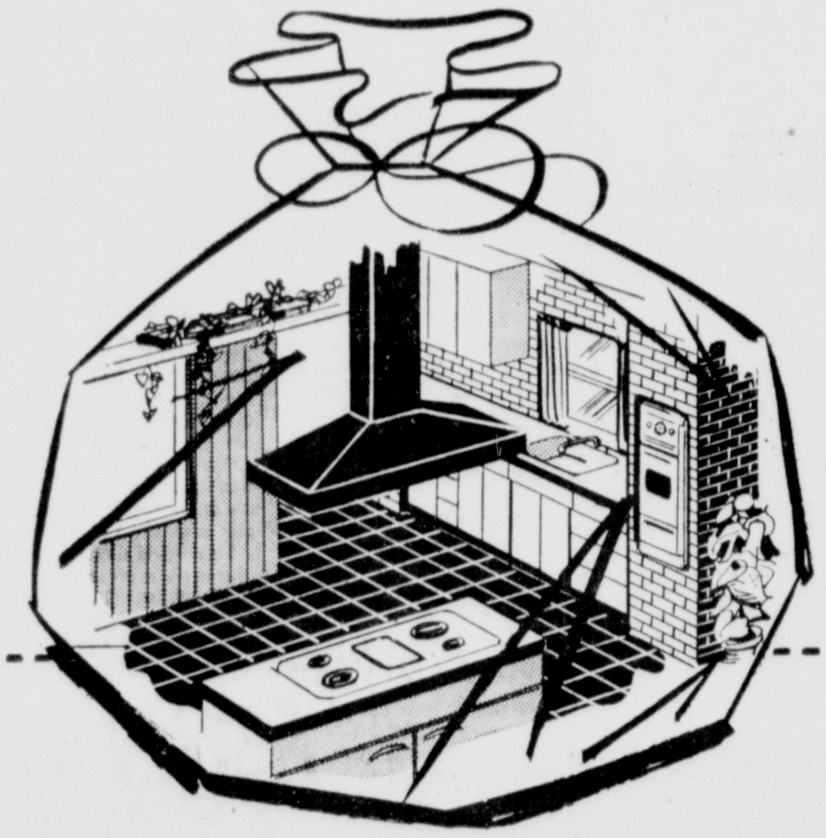

Gein admitted killing two women and robbing a dozen graves.

County Unable To Act Upon Teacher Pension

A piece of bad news for retired public school teachers was divulged at yesterday's session of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

A few weeks ago the county board passed a resolution for a supplemental pension payment to retired teachers. The commissioners had estimated the supplemental payments would cost an estimated $9,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1 and this sum was set up for inclusion in the next levy.

Commissioner James Orr, who voted against the resolution when it was before the board, asked for a legal ruling in the matter.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, checked the statutes and found that the commissioners have no authority to provide the supplemental pension as provided in the resolution.

The next step to be taken to provide for the supplemental pension payment will have to be made through legislation at Annapolis at the next session of the General Assembly in 1959.

Albright Line To End Service After 41 Years

Clofford O. Albright, owner of Albright Bus Line who began service 41 years ago in the Ellerslie-Hyndman area, plans to discontinue service on April 30.

Originally the bus line started with a 14-passenger Reo bus. Albright drove this bus day in and day out over the unpaved roadway. Back in those days there were no conveniences such as today's service stations and garages were few and far between, Albright recalls.

In 1925 the bus line started to make trips to and from the Celanese plant, then a fledgling firm. In the early 1930s when the Celanese plant started its expansion the business of hauling passengers was excellent. Albright said he hauled an average of 500 passengers daily on the various runs.

Then, in the late 1940s the Celanese plant started to curtail operations. Currently, the Albright firm hauls about 200 persons daily. The inroads of private cars has been tough competition, Albright said.

But the interesting saga of the method in which the 17-year-old youth built up a bus line will end April 30 when Albright will close down his bus line operation. He has notified the Public Service Commission of Maryland and Pennsylvania of his intention of quitting.

Albright operates three buses on the runs between Cumberland, Ellerslie and Hyndman and the Celanese plant. He said he is willing to sell the business.

Total mileage runs about 100,000 miles per year, Albright said. This makes about 4,000,000 miles his buses have chalked up since the inception of the service 41 years ago.

CHARLESTON (AP) — The state is ready to award contracts for aerial photographing of Marion, Marshall and Berkeley counties and preparation of tax maps from the photographs.

The Tax Department has tentatively accepted proposals of aerial mapping firms as to the three counties, and the county courts have concurred. The contracts are expected to be signed within a few days.

They will be the first contracts awarded in carrying out requirements of an act of the 1958 Legislature. It calls for appraisal, in the next three years, of all real and personal property in West Virginia, except that owned by public utilities.

Under the same act, the tax commissioner is required to establish a permanent property records system, including tax maps, for each county. The mapping phase is being undertaken ahead of the property appraisals.

E. G. Haislop, director of equalization in the Tax Department, said these proposals for mapping have been tentatively accepted:

Marion County, Emmett M. Rogers of Waynesburg, Pa., $87,550; Marshall County, American Air Surveys, Inc. of Pittsburgh, $85,500, and Berkeley County, Keystone Mapping Co. of York, Pa., $59,155.

Haislop explained that the Marion proposal is for mapping rural areas only. The city of Fairmont already has been mapped under a program intitiated by the county.

The dollar amounts of the proposals are based upon estimates by Haislop's office of the number of parcels of property to be mapped, their area, and the distribution as between rural and urban. The costs in the final contracts may vary somewhat from the figures tentatively accepted.

Because of spring foliage, the aerial phase of the work must be completed by mid-April. Haislop hopes to be able to have about 10 counties mapped this spring.

Offers from aerial mapping firms for mapping Tyler, Upshur, Wetzel and Cabell counties have been received, but the Tax Department has not yet consulted with the county courts about them. Offers also have been solicited from mapping firms as to Greenbrier, Putnam and Mason counties, but none has yet been received.

Counties in which to make the first efforts were chosen on the basis of helping those which stand to lose state school aid next year under present property appraisals and rewarding counties which have gone ahead on their own initiative with upgrading of property assessments.

The legislative act provides for payment by the state of 90 per cent of the cost of the appraisal and mapping program. Counties will pay the rest.

Last PRR Train Run Plus One

SALISBURY (AP)—It was no April fool joke when the train went barreling down the Eastern Shore today from Delmar, Del., to Cape Charles, Va.

Residents along the tracks, recalling the last scheduled run on the Pennsylvania Railroad line was made Jan. 12, were suspicious.

But railroad officials explained the train—consisting of a locmotive and two cars—was merely restored to action to carry company officers on an inspection trip.

Chambersburg Firm Low On SRC Contract

BALTIMORE (AP) — E. D. Plummer and Sons of Chambersburg, Pa. was the apparently low bidder Tuesday on a State Roads Commission contract for a construction project in Hagerstown, Md.

M. J. Grove Lime Co. of Lime Kiln, Md., was second low bidder with $696,157. Two other bids were as high as $741,715.05.

Indicted with the two Carolinians for operating a still in St. Mary's County, the southernmost in Maryland, are William Dawson, 37, of Callaway, Va., John Samuel Rice, 53, of Alexandria, Va., Herman Oliver Hayes, 35, of North Wilkesboro, N. C., Daniel Beufort Mattox, 33, of Rocky Mount, Va., and C. Hurst Martin.

Salisbury Insurance Agency Operator Dies

SALISBURY (AP) — C. Myron Dashiell, head of a Salisbury insurance agency, died Tuesday at Peninsula General Hospital. He had undergone an emergency operation March 23.

A native of Cambridge, Dashiell years ago operated a Salisbury cigar store and distributed several daily newspapers in the city. At the time of his death, Dashiell and his son, Charles, operated the C. Myron Dashiell and Son Insurance Agency.

Dashiell was the brother-in-law of Del. Perry O. Wilkinson (D-Prince Georges).

The Justice Department declined to discuss what brought about the order.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of hearts.

West displayed great care and precision in handling an unusual combination of cards on defense today. When it came time to make the key shift, he had selected the exact card to play.

South was microscopically short of the requirements for a one no trump opening so he made an introductory call in clubs. After North's diamond response, he felt his values were a shade too good to make the minimum rebid of one no trump but reluctantly had to content himself with the mild underbid in preference to showing his anemic spade holding.

West opened the four of hearts and when the jack held in dummy declarer immediately dislodged the ace of diamonds. The futility of continuing the attack in hearts was quite apparent, for declarer had in plain view nine cashable tricks — five diamonds, three hearts, and one club. A spade shift was therefore mandatory.

Obviously, East must be found with the ace of spades if there was any hope to defeat the contract. On this line of reasoning West might be inclined to lead a low spade.

Observe what happens if he does. Dummy plays low, East wins with the ace and returns the suit. West's king takes care of dummy's queen, but West can do no better than cash his jack, while South's ten holds up as a stopper.

West, however, did not become a victim of this pitfall. If East has the ace of spades, then the king of spades is just as good a lead as the small one. When the king holds, the low spade lead to partner's ace picks up dummy's queen and East returns his remaining spade. South's 10 is caught in a tenace position under West's jack-nine and the defense takes five tricks.

British Liberals Coming Back?

"They never come back" used to be a dictum about baseball players demoted to the minors from the big leagues. It has been applied also to major political parties that dwindled away—like the Federalists and the Whigs in the United States and, more recently, the Liberals in Great Britain.

But in baseball they do come back—a score of eminent players, like "Perfect Game" Larsen, have confounded the dictum by returning from the minors to star a second time in the majors. And now it looks as though the Liberal Party is back in British politics as a force to be reckoned with again. After all, it had been the party of the great Gladstone, reformers John Bright and Richard Cobden, libertarians John Stuart Mill and John Morley, Lloyd George, the early Winston Churchill, Lord Keynes.

In the latest by-election for the House of Commons—on March 27 at Torrington, in southwest England—the Liberal, a grandson of former prime minister Asquith, took a seat away from the Conservative party. In two preceding by-elections — Kelvingrove (Glasgow) March 13, Rochdale February 12 — it was Labor that took over a Conservative seat because the Conservative candidate ran a bad third to the Liberal.

Yet in the general election of 1955 the Liberal party won only six Commons seats, in fact had felt itself too weak to contest more than 110 of the 625. In 1951 also, only six Liberals were elected. And this for the party that had held the prime ministership for most of the years between 1868, when the name "Liberal" replaced "Whig," to 1924, when Labor first took over!

The British know that their political structure, like ours, works best under a two-party system. So both the Conservatives and the Laborites are hoping that many a Britisher who now votes Liberal in a by-election, probably in protest against both major parties, will nevertheless go over to one of the two in the next general election.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Time Marches On

In 1954, the Committee for Economic Development, which was founded by Paul Hoffman, took the position that the United States "reduce our tariffs and other barriers to foreign trade on a gradual and selective basis." This same committee in March 1958 takes the same position despite the influx of cheap-labor, low-taxes, subsidized foreign goods into the American market at a time of spiraling unemployment in American industry.

One would imagine that Thomas D. Cabot, formerly president of the United Fruit Company, who is responsible for the 1958 report, would recognize that time marches on and that it could be perilous for this country to be further weakened by discontented and even frightened labor. Unemployment is the most serious social disease that we can face; the ravages of it are visible for decades.

Cabot's reasoning is most interesting. First he quotes Khrushchev as saying:

"We declare war upon you—excuse me for using such an expression—in the peaceful field of trade.

"We declare a war. We will win over the United States. The threat to the United States is not the ICBM, but in the field of peaceful production. We are relentless in this and it will prove the superiority of our system."

Having said this, Cabot proceeds to establish:

"As far as foreign trade is concerned, this is no idle boast. Soviet Bloc-Free World trade increased 77 per cent from 1952 to 1956. In 1956 the Bloc accounted for over ten per cent of the total trade of seven Free World under-developed countries. Over twenty per cent of the total trade of Afghanistan, Iceland, Egypt and Yugoslavia was with Bloc countries; about seventeen per cent of Turkey's, sixteen per cent of Burma's and twelve per cent of Iran's.

"Western Europe and Latin America, areas of crucial importance to the United States, also figured prominently in Soviet Bloc trade in 1956. Sixty-eight per cent of the Bloc's total external trade in 1956, and seventy per cent of the increase in the Bloc's total foreign trade from 1952 to 1956, occurred with Western Europe . . ."

What has actually happened is an unexpected and even astonishing development in international banking and trade, namely, that Soviet Russia has become a large-scale capitalist in world banking and merchandising. Soviet Russia lends money, lends goods, sells goods, gives away goods, underwrites developments, barters, trades and is flexible on the subject of hard or soft currency, possessing both in enormous quantities. Adequate statistics are unavailable as to the total amount of gold possessed by Soviet Russia. There have been estimates that it is as high as $12,000,000,000 —maybe more. Whatever it is, Russian gold has been appearing on the free gold market, particularly in the London Gold Exchange. It is suspected, but not established, that some Russian gold has appeared in Swiss banks to be used in take-over activities in this country and in Great Britain.

The C. E. D. is apparently conscious of this new-type capitalistic activity on the part of Soviet Russia and is duly frightened by it. But Soviet Russia does not maintain a free market within the Soviet Universal State. There all goods are closely controlled, locally manufactured, imported, exported. As the government is the sole purchaser of the total manufacture and of the total import, no tariff is necessary. In Soviet Russia, the government owns and manages the means of production, distribution and exchange and therefore in the economic field, the government's decisions are not questionable by private persons.

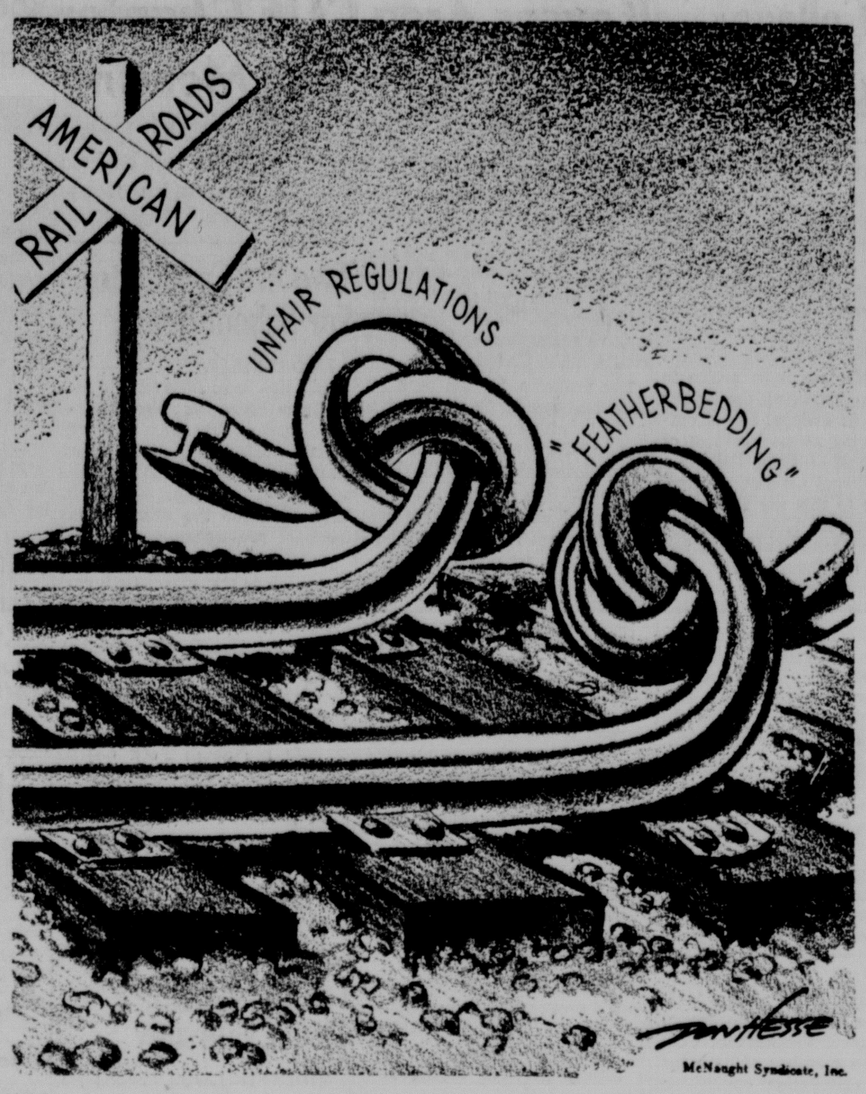

Let us take an example. Let us say that Soviet Russia, for political reasons, decides to buy an enormous share of the Brazilian coffee crop—more coffee than can be consumed in Russia where the people prefer tea.

This would be a barter transaction between the two governments. It would undoubtedly be subject to political as well as economic considerations. The price of coffee, per pound or per ton, would be decided along political lines without regard to economic conditions. It would be Soviet Russia's hope to recoup whatever losses developed by selling the coffee elsewhere or take the loss as a cost of the cold war. The objective of the transaction would be to wean Brazil away from the United States and to open its doors to Communist activities.

This is unrelated to tariffs, free trade or the free market. It is a new device developed first by Dr. Schacht of Hitler's Germany.

No Longer A Right Of Way

Benson's Lobbyist Friend Works To Defeat Humane Slaughter Bill

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When Aled Davies, lobbyist for the meat packers, stood at the bar in the National Press Club and boasted about his close friendship with Ezra Taft Benson, he didn't do himself much good. But he did do some good for the American public.

Bill McGaffin of the Chicago Daily News promptly wrote a story about Davies' boast even though Davies made big noises about having McGaffin bounced from the Press Club.

The farmers who look to Benson for support hadn't entirely realized before that Ezra is more the friend of the meat packer and big processor than he is of the dirt farmer. His close friend Davies, for instance, is now lobbying against the O'Mahoney bill introduced by the Senator from Wyoming to transfer anti-trust jurisdiction over the meat packers to the Federal Trade Commission to act instead. Davies is opposing the transfer.

Davies is also the lobbyist working to stop the humane slaughter bill, already passed by the House of Representatives, thanks to Congresswoman Martha Griffiths of Michigan. This bill would require hogs and steers to be given a quick dose of gas before they are hammered over the head in the packing houses. In some cases dazed steers, knocked on the head but not killed, go careening around the slaughterhouse before they are finally butchered.

Lobbyist Davies has been working with the Republican members of the Senate Agriculture Committee to hold extensive hearings on this bill even though hearings were held two years ago. So far Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana, chairman, has hung back on taking action.

Meanwhile, Secretary Benson is reported a bit hesitant about his earlier plan to appoint his friend Davies as a delegate to the British Food Fair Aug. 28-Sept. 11 in London. Last year Davies went as a representative to the American Meat Institute, but this year Benson was planning to make him an official delegate of the Agriculture Department—until he got all the publicity over ghost-writing Benson's statement that he would not resign as Secretary of Agriculture.

Reuther's Critic

It happened in a closed-door session and the public isn't supposed to know about it, but Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater, who demanded an investigation of Auto Workers boss Walter Reuther, tried at the last minute to block him from testifying in his own defense.

"I see no need for either Mr. Kohler or Mr. Reuther to come down here," whined Goldwater behind closed doors. He obviously feared the quick-witted Reuther would outtalk Herbert Kohler in the windup testimony over the bitter, four-year strike at the Kohler Company's Sheboygan, Wis., plant.

"Do you think it would be fair to Walter Reuther now not to let him come down here?" demanded Chairman John McClellan, the Arkansas Democrat whose own philosophy is hardly pro-Reuther.

"I did not give a darn whether he came or not," snapped Goldwater, "but as far as Mr. Kohler was concerned, I do not think he is going to add much to this thing. Now, as to Mr. Reuther we have lots of questions we can ask him."

"I am not going to be a party to denying him the right to testify before this committee," snorted McClellan.

"I just do not think that he is going to add anything, and I do not care if he comes or not," shrugged Goldwater. "And the same way with Mr. Kohler because Mr. Kohler, I feel certain, does not know too much about this."

Newest Ambassador

Latest addition to the diplomatic corps is svelte, handsome Ambassador Hector Santaella, representative of the new democratic government of Venezuela which recently kicked out long-time terrorist dictator Perez Jimenez.

Educated at Texas A. & M. University and Harvard, Ambassador Santaella is a businessman who understands the problems of American oil companies yet was arrested three times by hated police chief Pedro Estrada because he championed democracy.

Calling on President Eisenhower to present his credentials, he came back impressed.

"The President was in excellent health, alert, charming, sympathetic," he said. "He has a warm, dynamic personality."

Despite the charming reception Ike gave to the new Venezuelan ambassador, two days later he slapped a restriction on Venezuela where it hurts most —imports of Venezuelan oil. The diplomatic corps was flabbergasted over the fact that Eisenhower delivered a full-dress speech one day last week emphasizing the importance of foreign trade and on the same day, slapped new American restrictions on foreign trade.

Note: Eisenhower was under pressure from Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas and some of Ike's Texas oil friends to further curtail oil imports.

Russian Ban On Atomic Tests Is Huge Hoax

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The biggest hoax of our times is the Soviet-inspired drive to stop the testing of nuclear weapons.

Many well-meaning, loyal citizens have been misled by the propaganda, and many people throughout the world have been scared about the supposed ill-effects of "fall-out" from the tests.

Authoritative evidence has been produced again and again by reputable scientists that "fall-out" from nuclear-weapons tests has not added any real danger. But somehow this evidence is constantly ignored, and the Soviet propaganda campaign moves on because the truth is not conspicuously displayed.

Over the weekend came a point statement from 160 scientists gathered at Lausanne, Switzerland, where, under the auspices of the Swiss Academy of Medicine, a three-day symposium was held "to determine all the long-range consequences of radioactivity." There were representatives present from the United States, France, Italy, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium, Norway and Switzerland. An invitation to attend was declined by Soviet scientists.

"Thanks mainly to the extensive and painstaking research conducted in the Angle-Saxon countries, it appears well established that the increase in atmospheric radioactivity and in radioactive fall-out does not play any essential part and does not have any practical importance when compared to natural radiation.

"The values which have been recorded do not, in any case, constitute a danger to the health of mankind."

Nothing could be more explicit and reassuring. Yet this very point has been made again and again, as, for instance, by the National Academy of Sciences in America. But within a short time after such pronouncements are issued, there are always a few scientists who come out with rebuttals or with arguments that the layman cannot understand, but which keep the scare going. Nothing pleases Moscow more.

It may or may not be significant that some of the persons in the scientific field here and abroad who hold ideological attitudes similar to the Communists are among the most ardent of the advocates of the theory that nuclear-weapons tests are highly dangerous. One of the scientists in the forefront of the agitation is a man who was refused security clearance by our government in certain research work. He may have been unjustly accused, and it may, of course, be sheer coincidence that he is arguing so vehemently against the determination made by the Atomic Energy Commission to continue testing.

The agitation is not confined to this country. West Germany is in the midst of demonstrations fomented by Communist sympathizers who want no atomic weapons supplied to NATO forces there.

Most sensational now, however, is the Soviet government's announcement that it will stop testing nuclear weapons on its own and will not ask for any international agreement before doing so. This is already hailed in some quarters here as a smart propaganda move. But are we so gullible as to applaud a policy which can be changed at will in three or six months, but which for the time being would, if concurred in here, stop more important American tests just as they are about to be made?

In this connection, it is interesting to note that Dr. Willard F. Libby, famed scientist who is a member of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, said in a speech at the Switzerland meeting last week that a bomb had been fired underground in recent tests in Nevada and that "essentially no radioactivity, even that belonging to such a volatile material as radioactive krypton, escaped to any considerable degree."

Dr. Libby says this means "it is possible at least in certain types of weapons tests to contain and eliminate radioactive fall-out." He points out, too, that "persons living at high altitudes on granitic rocks always have received extra radiation many times greater than is contained in the radioactive fall-out from the testing of nuclear weapons, and even those living on certain sedimentary rocks at sea level always have received about ten to twenty times the present fall-out dose."

Despite the existence of biological hazards of one kind or another constantly affecting a small percentage of the world's population due to medical X-rays, the sun's rays and other natural causes, life has to go on. Exploratory tests are needed to advance peaceful as well as military uses of atomic energy. Testing is important, moreover, because deterrent weapons have to be developed by the United States so as to keep some one-man government from suddenly plunging the world into a war that could wipe out millions of lives. If Soviet Russia could prevent the use of nuclear bombs, her conventional forces are big enough today to conquer Western Europe. So the Soviet game is to get the West to give up nuclear weapons while the Communist armies of Russia and Red China dominate Europe and Asia.

That revolution in Indonesia would have kept George Washington busy crossing the Delaware to 3,184 islands.

It's an archipelago form of government. Or a busted-up peninsula.

When you live on an archipelago, you do so one island at a time. You have to join the navy in order to get into the army.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

It was five o'clock. He came out of the Henry Heide Candy Company office, removed his hat in the elevator, put it on in the lobby, and walked out of the building. He was almost as broad as he was tall. The eyes were underscored with care and laughter. He moved into the river of pedestrians and, in a moment, was lost in a stream of undulating hats.

His name is Robert A. Lewis. He is 40, lives in Old Tappan, New Jersey, has a wife, five children. Just another commuter.

Thirteen years ago he poured the coal to the Enola Gay. The time was 2:45 a. m. She ran down the Tinian runway low and fat and a lot of men held their breath as she lifted slowly and went out to sea and made a wide turn and climbed to 4,000 feet. She headed north to Japan. In her belly was the first atomic bomb ever to be dropped on people.

The day was August 6th, 1945. There were 12 men aboard and they had been briefed about the new bomb. Some understood it. Some took it for granted. In the bomb bay, Captain Parsons, USN, sorted his wrenches and screwdrivers. In a few hours, the captain would arm the bomb.

It was a big baby, that first one. It measured about 18 feet from one end to the other and it had a big 6-inch naval rifle running down the middle. It weighed 8,900 pounds. The B-29 droned northward. Captain Lewis dozed with his ears awake. Colonel Paul Tibbetts, the boss, sat watching the yoke jump in front of him. The Enola Gay was on automatic pilot and he watched the electronic brain make corrections.

It was like this hour after hour. Dawn sneaked into the sky like a slow blush. The radio operator had a message. The B-29 that was scouting far ahead had just reported leaving Hiroshima. The primary target would be wide open. Scattered clouds below, that's all. Another message. Word from the two B-29s that would accompany Enola Gay. They were at Iwo Jima, waiting.

Tibbetts gave the order to start climbing. She pulled up slow and sedate. One man worked at a big radio in the bombing section. His job was to find out if the Japanese tried to jam Enola Gay's radio signals. The bomb would be detonated by radio signal, if possible. If not, it would be set off by air pressure at 1,800 feet. If the bomb was to be armed, and the Japanese sent the proper signal at the proper wavelength, Enola Gay would become momentarily, a star.

They picked up their escort. At 32,000 feet, the three B-29s trailed white. Kyushu came up on the left and Captain Parsons dropped into the bomb bay and used his wrenches and screwdrivers. He came back up nodding soberly. The bombardier sat at his eyepiece all the way up Bungo Strait. The sun was bright. It was a pretty morning.

Enola Gay made the final run steady and alone. The escorts—chicken—turned for home. Kure appeared under the right wing and then Hiroshima, fat and bright and busy. There was a long wait. No one said "Bomb away!" The plane lightened suddenly and lifted like an express elevator and the 12 men knew. Tibbetts looked at Lewis. The captain made a wide two mile turn to the right. He turned away 150 degrees from Hiroshima. Everyone donned the dark Navy glasses.

Captain Lewis found that he could not pilot the plane with the glasses. He dropped them over his throat. He looked at his watch. Exactly 43 seconds after the plane had lightened, he saw Enola Gay brighten to a dazzling whiteness. She was climbing at 180 miles per hour, so that the wings and rudder could absorb the shock. Fifteen seconds later, the ship bounced and Tibbetts yelled: "Ack-ack!" Lewis shook his head no. A few seconds later, a second shock, this one caroming off the ground, hit the plane.

They waited a minute, then turned back to Hiroshima for a look. A mountain of smoke was building into the sky. It was colored rose and green and yellow. It was boiling. Far below, the city was in flames and, from Enola Gay, the men could watch the fire race up both sides of the river into the hills. "My God!" said Lewis. "My good God!"

Below, 80,000 Japanese were dead. Far behind Enola Gay, one million Americans were alive. A fourth of these would have died if they had had to assault the Japanese home islands to win the war. Enola Gay headed back to Tinian.

In the river of pedestrians, Robert A. Lewis, 40, hurried down to the subway. A girl bumped into him. His hat fell off. "I beg your pardon," he said. She nodded curtly. "Take it easy," she said. "You going to a fire or something?" . . .

Learning To Get Along After Paralyzing Stroke

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Deller

Motivation is the all-important element in the successful treatment of any disease. The person who is determined to speed recovery resumes his normal activities sooner than the one who enjoys invalidism. This is most noticeable after operations, fractured bones, heart attacks, and pneumonia.

Apoplexy victims fall into the same category—up to a certain point. Facing paralysis is discouraging, but if rehabilitative exercises are started soon after the acute stage passes, convalescence will be shortened.

Yet the will to recover is not the only factor in this illness. Some strokes do more damage than others. If the involved arm does not respond to adequate treatment and tests of muscles show no response, the patient must resort to other plans. Here again, motivation plays a role in that the sensible and optimistic person will decide to make the most of what he has.

The individual with a paralyzed arm that fails to improve after a year of therapy must learn to get along without it. He is no worse off than the person who has lost his arm in an accident. In many ways he is better off because he can utilize the same attachments used to move the fingers and elbows of an artificial limb. A living though paralyzed arm has sensation and in this respect is more efficient than a prosthesis. Braces are devised to support the leg and offer the stroke victim the same help in walking as they do individuals paralyzed by polio.

It is a waste of time and money to continue to encourage a paralyzed individual when the chances are nil that he ever will be able to use an affected arm or leg. It would be better for him to learn to get along with what remains. He may be unable to resume his former occupation but will find starting from scratch challenging.

A highly respected industrialist was extremely happy the day he mastered a few simple tasks at home, which meant he could get along alone. He was resigned to the fact that his work days were over but, being well adjusted emotionally, was determined to enjoy his remaining days even though handicapped. He said: "I'm thankful my heart and mind are good and I'm not in pain. Losing the use of an arm is better than having cancer or other serious illnesses."

INFLAMED BLADDER

Inflammation of the bladder can occur by itself or as a result of disorders anywhere along the urinary tract, including the kidneys. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on cystitis.

FACIAL PARALYSIS

M. T. writes: Is Bell's palsy due to a stroke?

REPLY

Ordinary Bell's palsy (facial paralysis) is due to neuritis of the facial nerve, following inflammation or exposure to cold. A somewhat similar but less common type of facial paralysis results from stroke.

CURVED AT BIRTH

Mrs. Y. writes: Could a person be born with curvature of the spine?

REPLY

Yes. Structural defects such as abnormalities of the vertebrae may be present at birth. In later childhood, the spine may become curved abnormally because of rickets or poor posture.

MEDICARE

Mrs. D. writes: Are all dependents of men in service entitled to free medical care under the new government program?

REPLY

The new Medicare program allows dependents of military personnel to receive medical care from government facilities. When these are not available they can receive civilian medical care. It is not entirely free because the patient must pay a percentage of the hospital bill.

SINUS DRAINAGE

S. D. writes: If a sinus discharge drains down the throat, can it cause stomach trouble?

REPLY

Some individuals become nauseated by postnasal drip but the infected material does not damage the stomach. The gastric acids are so strong they are capable of killing bacteria that are swallowed.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted Dr Van Deller will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Keeper of the general store in a small New Hampshire village bought a fresh stock from a Boston wholsaler, but neglected to pay for it. The wholesaler, his dunning letters ignored, wrote to the local banker to check on his customer's credit rating, to the county judge to ask for the name of the best lawyer in those parts, and to the station agent to make sure the goods had been delivered in the first place.

Back came this note: "As stationmaster I delivered your goods okay, and as owner of the store, signed receipt for same. As bank president, I okay my credit. As judge, I recommend myself as the best lawyer in these parts. And, if I wasn't the pastor, too, I'd tell you to go jump in the lake!"

County Unable To Act Upon Teacher Pension

A piece of bad news for retired public school teachers was divulged at yesterday's session of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

A few weeks ago the county board passed a resolution for a supplemental pension payment to retired teachers. The commissioners had estimated the supplemental payments would cost an estimated $9,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1 and this sum was set up for inclusion in the next levy.

Commissioner James Orr, who voted against the resolution when it was before the board, asked for a legal ruling in the matter.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, checked the statutes and found that the commissioners have no authority to provide the supplemental pension as provided in the resolution.

The next step to be taken to provide for the supplemental pension payment will have to be made through legislation at Annapolis at the next session of the General Assembly in 1959.

Albright Line To End Service After 41 Years

Clofford O. Albright, owner of Albright Bus Line who began service 41 years ago in the Ellerslie-Hyndman area, plans to discontinue service on April 30.

Originally the bus line started with a 14-passenger Reo bus. Albright drove this bus day in and day out over the unpaved roadway. Back in those days there were no conveniences such as today's service stations and garages were few and far between, Albright recalls.

In 1925 the bus line started to make trips to and from the Celanese plant, then a fledgling firm. In the early 1930s when the Celanese plant started its expansion the business of hauling passengers was excellent. Albright said he hauled an average of 500 passengers daily on the various runs.

Then, in the late 1940s the Celanese plant started to curtail operations. Currently, the Albright firm hauls about 200 persons daily. The inroads of private cars has been tough competition, Albright said.

But the interesting saga of the method in which the 17-year-old youth built up a bus line will end April 30 when Albright will close down his bus line operation. He has notified the Public Service Commission of Maryland and Pennsylvania of his intention of quitting.

Albright operates three buses on the runs between Cumberland, Ellerslie and Hyndman and the Celanese plant. He said he is willing to sell the business.

Total mileage runs about 100,000 miles per year, Albright said. This makes about 4,000,000 miles his buses have chalked up since the inception of the service 41 years ago.

DETROIT, April 1—(INS)—The incredible Maurice (Rocket) Richard scored a three-goal "hat trick" tonight to lead the Montreal Canadiens to a 4-to-3 win over Detroit and a sweep of their Stanley Cup semi-final playoff series.

The Canadiens, winners of the cup the past two seasons, will meet the winner of the Boston-New York best - of - seven series, currently deadlocked at two games apiece.

The Flying Frenchmen, trailing 3-to-1 at the start of the third period, capitalized on two Detroit penalties to even the score and tallied the winning goal 49 seconds later.

Wertz To Leave Tucson Hospital

TUCSON, Ariz., April 1—(INS) Cleveland Indian first baseman Vic Wertz, who broke his ankle Sunday in an exhibition game with the San Francisco Giants, is expected to be released from St. Mary's Hospital either today or tomorrow.

Doctors said Wertz will stay at the El Conquistador Hotel in Tucson for about a week and a walking cast will be placed on the ankle. He will then return to Cleveland.

Wertz, mainstay of the Cleveland hitting attack, broke the ankle sliding into second base and will be out of action for about 10 weeks.

Nine Horses Named For Deep Run Hunt Cup Test Saturday

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A slim field of nine horses, headed by Grand Chal, winner of last week's renewal of the Cargina Cup at Camden, S. C., was named Tuesday for the 26h running here Saturday of the Deep Run Hunt Cup.

Grand Chal, owned by Alfred H. Smith of Upper Marlboro, Md., made his 1957 debut in the Deep Run Hunt Cup and started off a string of victories that also included the Virginia Gold Cup at Warrenton.

The Deep Run Hunt, three miles over 18 timber fences for a $1,000 purse, is the feature attraction of five races starting at 2:30 p.m (EST).

The other Maryland contenders are New Horizon, owned by George H. Arrowsmith of Upperco, and Starboard, owned by Thomas S. Nichols of Owings Mills.

Jack Kramer's Pros Will Aid U.S. Cup Team

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jack Kramer, professional tennis promoter, was named Tuesday to initiate an intensive training program with the sole aim of winning back the Davis Cup from Australia.

James B. Moffett, chairman of the U.S. Davis Cup selection committee, said the first step will be putting Barry Mackay of Dayton, Ohio, one of America's bright tennis stars, under Kramer's personal tutelage.

Mackay, 23-year-old University of Michigan graduate, will return from Europe this weekend and join Kramer's professional tour. Moffett said MacKay will work out daily with Pancho Gonzales, Lew Hoad, Tony Trabert and Pancho Segura.

Dupas, Fuentes Bout Approved By Ring Group

Disregards Warning By Attorney General

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Louisiana State Athletic Commission Tuesday night disregarded the warning of an assistant attorney general and reaffirmed its approval of the Ralph Dupas - Ramon Fuentes boxing match April 7.

Asst. Atty. Gen. John Jackson had advised the commission earlier in the day that such a bout would violate a state law banning racially mixed fights.

The commission voted unanimously to uphold its prior sanction of the fight and said that Dupas' racial status "should remain status quo until finally decided by the judiciary."

Jackson wrote the commission that a check of birth registrations showed Dupas is registered as a Negro.

Dupas is from New Orleans, Fuentes from Los Angeles.

Appeals Judge Richard McBride Monday reversed a lower court ruling which had ordered the city of New Orleans to issue Dupas a birth certificate showing him to be white.

McBride said Dupas failed to prove he was born in New Orleans and thus left the court without jurisdiction.

Stoneham, a vice president in the baseball organization, is accused in the Feb. 4 death of Mrs. Jennie A. Leach, who was killed in a car collision at Phoenix. Mrs. Leach was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, William. Young Stoneham was driving the other auto.

The dead woman's husband has filed a $600,000 damage suit against Stoneham, his father, Horace and the Giants.

Cancellation Of Tam Golf May Touch Off Rebellion

May Refuses To Pay Entry Fees To PGA; Offers Suggestions

By BOB GLASS

CHICAGO, April 1 (INS) — The pin that burst the bubble in the cancellation of Chicago's two major golf tournaments this year—the All-American Invitational and the World Championship of Golf—threatened today to mushroom into a nationwide rebellion against the Professional Golfers' Association.

George S. May, sponsor of the two Tam O'Shanter tourneys, told newsmen in his executive offices that he under no circumstances "would hold any tournament this year."

The 67-year-old operator of the famed Tam O' Shanter course, cancelled the two meets last night because he refused to pay the entry fees to the PGA.

May declared later "that it was not the money but the principle of the thing."

Discrimination Charged

May estimated that his club would have to pay $40,000 to the PGA. "This is plain discrimination," he said.

The Tam O' Shanter president added that he would consider holding the tournaments in 1959 "if they let me write my own ticket."

May said as sponsor of a tournament, he had a perfect right to take his action. He picked up a telegram he received from Bill Bryant, president of the California Country club in Whittier. It read:

"Congratulations on your stand by refusing to pay entry fees to the PGA. Sponsors throughout the country will back you."

Earlier, Illinois PGA President Harry Pezzullo, went along with May and said "it's a shame they treat George S. May differently than other sponsors."

Asked if he thought the other sponsors would go along with him and refuse to pay entry fees, he answered:

"I had a lot of encouragement from other sponsors last November at the PGA annual meeting in Long Beach, Calif. I would have agreed then if they would have given me the contract but I didn't get it until 10 days ago and I didn't know anything about the entry fee clause."

At the same time, May said he sympathized with the PGA because of what he called "its terrific expenses in holding tournaments." He added:

"It costs the PGA about $86,000 a year to run the tournaments and they have a tough time getting the money."

May said he had an answer. He pointed out that if players had to pay a yearly fee to compete, "purses would be higher and the PGA would not have to resort to other methods of raising money." He added:

Suggests Players Pay

"If the top 50 players in the country would pay $2,000 a year, they could compete in all the tournaments. Then, they (the PGA) could collect $100 apiece from the other players. In this way, two tournaments would be held.

"When players in the $100 class get better, then they would compete with the better players. It would change every year. People in small towns would get to see golf even if the top players did not compete."

At the same time May ruled out a report that he was quitting the tournament field "because of business reasons."

Street Flushing Work Begins; Benches Out

The Street Department, taking advantage of a break in the weather, started its street-washing project Monday night to get rid of the dirt and grime deposited by winter.

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz said half of Baltimore Street, between the B&O Railroad and Centre Street, was cleaned in addition to the railroad subway. The subway was so dirty, Buchholtz said, it took the crew more than an hour in that spot.

Last night, the department completed Baltimore Street and then will turn its attention to the area around Algonquin Hotel, out Greene Street to Johnson Street and both approaches to the new Blue Bridge.

Andrew H. Heller, street superintendent, also announced that the department placed benches along Baltimore Street for the convenience of pedestrians yesterday.

The benches have been painted green and concrete balustrades white, he added.

Buchholtz said the department has begun temporary patching of streets and will begin permanent jobs within a couple of days with any cooperation from the weather. It will take about two days for streets to dry out sufficiently for the permanent patching, he said.

Several crews will be available for the patching work, he added.

About one-half of all adults in the United States have trouble getting to sleep.

Long Wants Study Made On South End Overpass

Finance Commissioner John J. Long said yesterday his suggestion for a discussion on the possibility of an overpass at the Virginia Avenue crossing of the B&O in connection with the Industrial Boulevard was a matter for the Mayor and Council and not just two members of the official family.

In a statement yesterday, Long said: "The suggestion I made at Monday's Mayor and Council meeting and later formed into a motion so as to make certain a discussion would be held and the suggestion not 'pigeon-holed' in an already overcrowded 'pigeon-hole file' was this: Following my direct question, that at the time negotiations made by the B&O for sale of property along Laing Avenue to the B&O by the city that no provision was made for an overbridge or the improvement of the present Virginia Avenue subway.

"I then suggested that with the present plans calling for a modern highway (east and west) to converge at the Virginia Avenue subway (which runs north and south) and it being the only South Cumberland access for many industrial firms, many homes of Cumberland taxpayers and entrance to the states south of Cumberland, that the Mayor and Council should discuss the possibility of an overhead bridge or if that is not feasible, to improve the present subway (constructed in 1925) so it would coordinate with the 1958 modern highway."

Long then said he read with surprise where Mayor Roy W. Eves and City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum conferred with a B&O official (Story on Page 5) and a statement by Eves that an overhead was too costly when the subway was constructed and the same applies at present.

"This is a typical procedure that has been going on at City Hall the past six years," Long said. "Meetings are held and the issues become confused before the Mayor and Council has the opportunity to study and decide as a unified group, on action to take. All of this is contrary to Cumberland's present charter of government.

"There certainly can be no harm and some good should result when a mayor and four councilmen who represent the people of Cumberland discuss with the B&O the traffic problem that exists today with the Virginia Avenue subway. And this discussion should be between the Mayor and Council and the B&O, not between the mayor and city engineer.

"Need I remind these two gentlemen that during Mr. Eves' administration the Virginia Avenue subway was flooded at one time and all traffic north and south stopped with the emergency existing. In case of fire or serious illness, or service to the homes and industrial firms south of the B&O railroad tracks, it would have been time consuming to reach the area by way of the West Side and Ridgeley.

"Also that Williams Street B&O crossing was closed to Cumberland traffic forever; traffic lights were erected along several North End B&O crossings (and I opposed and voted against these projects); also an overhead bridge, as part of the thruway, is to be erected over the B&O tracks in the central part of the city with federal, state and city money; and various sections of streets and alleys in the vicinity of Laing Avenue were closed and sold to the B&O.

"It is my opinion, that the success of any government and especially Cumberland, will depend upon the attention given by its representatives for what is good for all the people of Cumberland," Long concluded.

Long's suggestion Monday was supported by Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan who seconded the motion for the discussion with the B&O.

Cancer Unit Offered $11,750 By United Fund

The Steering Committee of the County United Fund announced yesterday it had offered $11,750 to the Allegany County Chapter, American Cancer Society.

In a letter to William Walsh, Cancer Society president, William R. Carscaden said the offer is subject to approval of the CUF executive committee. He said it was understood the amount offered is approximately the same received from all sources during the 1957 cancer campaign.

Under terms of the offer the Cancer Society would conduct no personal solicitation or mail campaign in the area served by CUF, and enter into an agreement the same as other agencies of CUF.

The Cancer Society holds its educational program and solicitation in April, "Cancer Month."

Prior to the formation of CUF, the Cancer Society had announced it was bound by national organization rules and could not participate.

Ziegler Road Bridge Started

Work on the construction of the Ziegler Road bridge across Sideling Hill Creek in the eastern part of Allegany County has been started.

The project, which links Allegany and Washington counties, will be paid for on an equal basis by both counties.

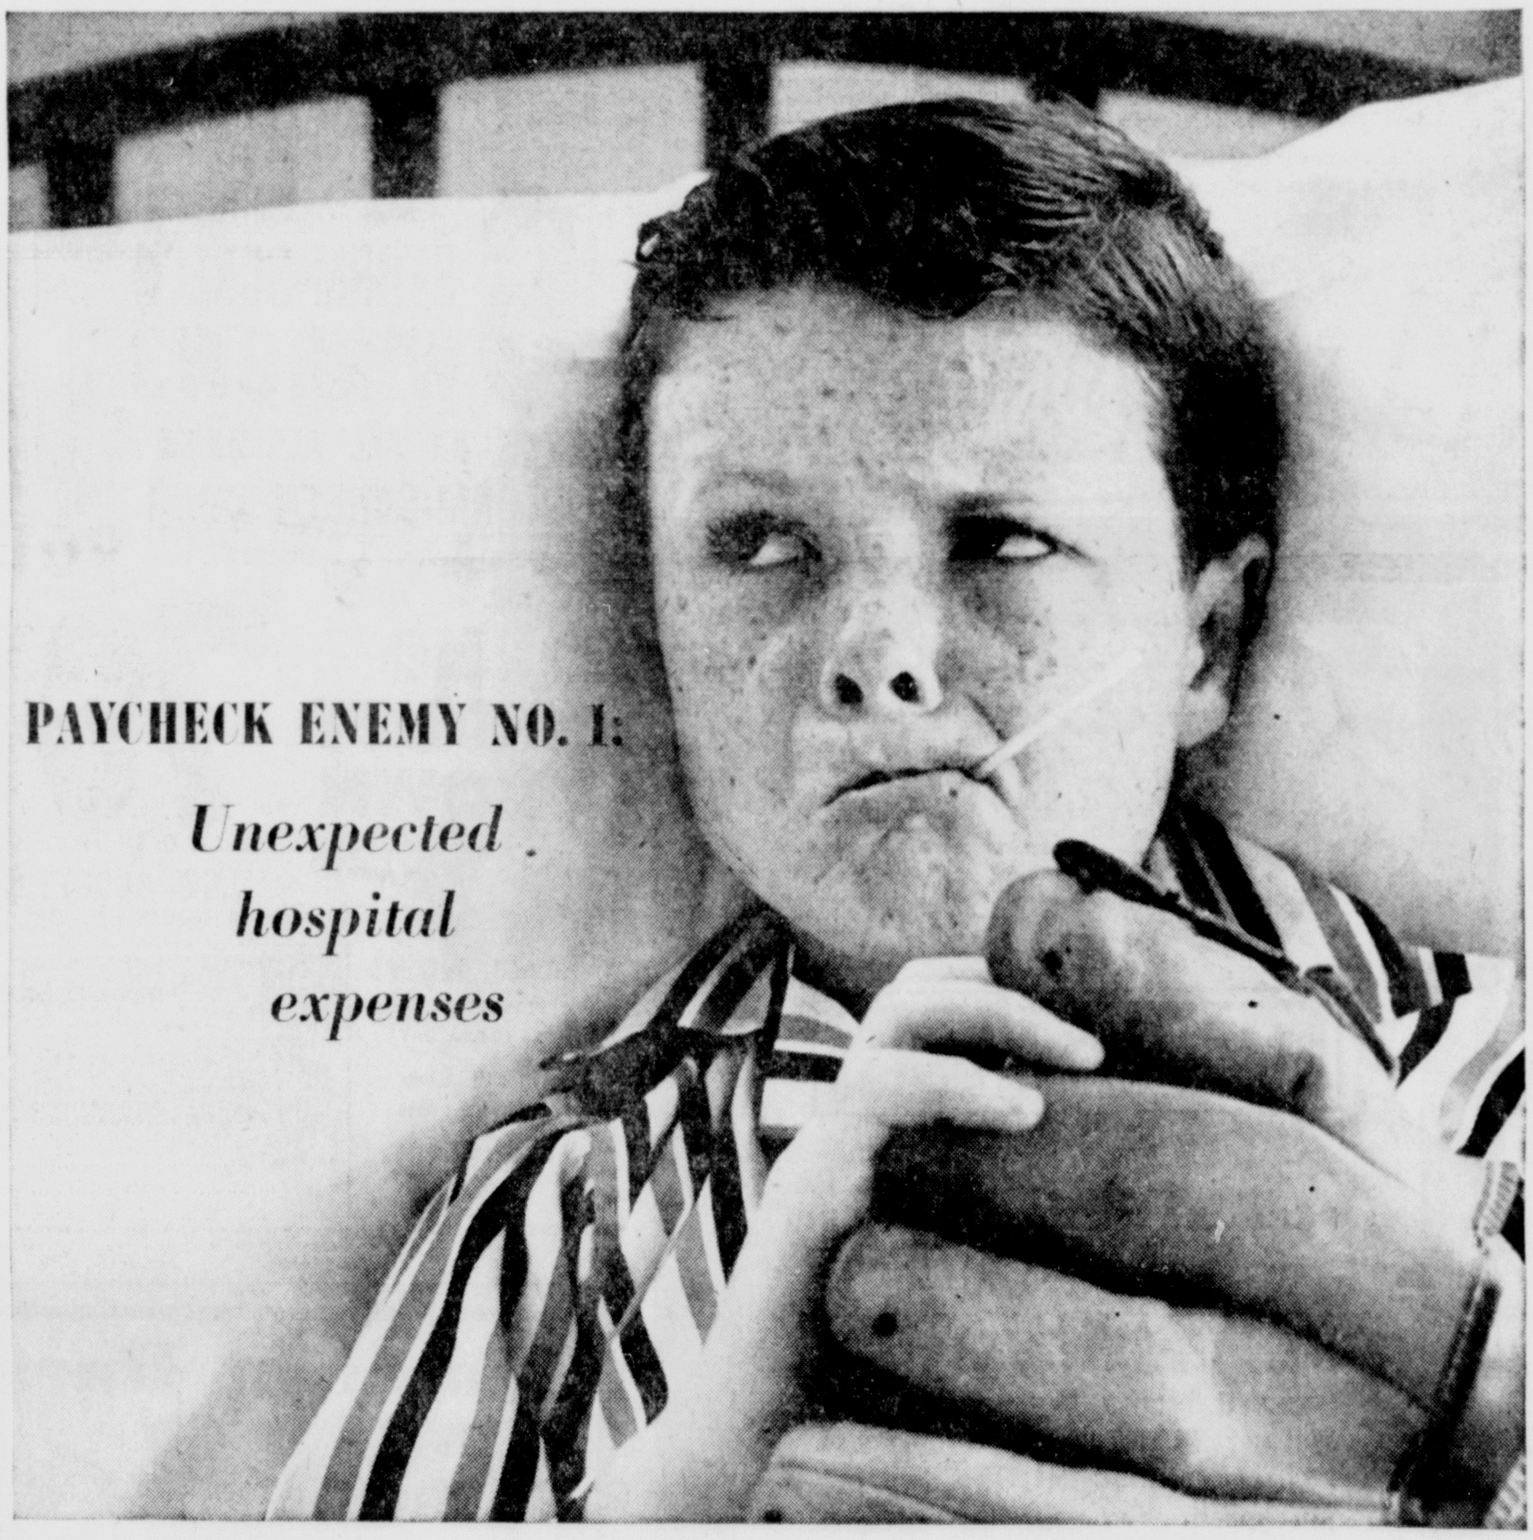

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners reported yesterday that the roads workers are also engaged in filling pot holes in hardsurfaced highways in the county. This work will be done before any major work is started on unpaved roadways.

Several complaints on roads were received by the commissioners yesterday.

Mrs. Paul Keller, LaVale, said Deal Avenue is in a bad state of repair. This will be taken care of later on, the board decided.

Mrs. Melvin Henry complained about the condition of Wright Street in Grahamtown. The matter was referred to J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor.

A father and son, Samuel Metz Sr. and Jr., appeared before the board to ask that repairs be made to Dogwood Flat Road in the Barton area. The matter was referred to Chapman.

Protect your budget from unexpected hospital bills . . . join BLUE CROSS

You won't want to think about bills and budgets when sudden illness lays your "Little Leaguer" low.

The important thing is to get him back in the lineup. But when he's back in the batter's box, scowling at the pitcher, your problems may be only beginning—if you haven't planned to meet them.

Luckily, planning to meet unexpected hospital expenses is easy, when you join your neighbors in Blue Cross, the non-profit plan to pre-pay hospital expenses.

Today over 1,000,000 Marylanders have, through membership in Blue Cross, broad realistic protection against the expense of sudden illness or accident.

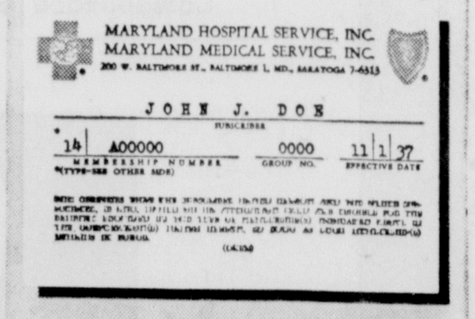

Key to Blue Cross: "Service Benefits"

The heart of Blue Cross is hospital care, rather than cash. Through Blue Cross "service benefits"—agreements between Blue Cross and the member hospital—all the hospital's regular services are available to you. And Blue Cross pays the hospital directly for your care. You don't have to file a claim and wait for reimbursement. Another advantage is that these "service benefits" can cover a subscriber's hospital expenses in full, where cash payments may not.

Find Out Now About Blue Cross

If there is a Blue Cross group where you work, ask your employer how you may join it. If there is no Blue Cross group where you work, and there are five or more people employed there, ask your employer about getting Blue Cross protection for you. Brooks Is 7th Jockey To Ride 3,000 Winners

Steve Is Presented Memento After Race

HALLANDALE, Fla., April 1 (INS) — Veteran Jockey Steve Brooks today became the seventh rider in racing history to boot home 3,000 winners, scoring aboard a two-year-old filly named Tempest Tossed in the third race at Gulfstream Park.

"I've had many a thrill, but this is the greatest," said the beaming Brooks during post-race ceremonies in the winner's circle.

Brooks was given an ovation by patrons of the Hallandale track when his feat was announced to the crowd.

A native of McCook, Neb., Brooks began riding 17 years ago in Shreveport, La.

On July 14, 1951, he was aboard Calumet Farm's famed Citation when the horse won the Hollywood Gold Cup to become the richest thoroughbred in racing history with earnings of $1,085,760.

Jockey Contreras Has Four Winners At Lincoln Downs

LINCOLN, R. I., April 1 (AP) — Veteran Jockey Jorge Contreras piloted four winners in accepting six mounts today at Lincoln Downs.

He was out of the money on Illuminate in the fifth race, and finished fourth with Harbash in the featured seventh.

Everett Lowrance's Mr. Marcey regained the lead 70 yards from the finish and pulled away to a length triump in the $3,000 Johnston Purse before a crowd of 6,582.

Mr. Marcey splashed through a sloppy track to defeat J. K. Houssel's Slammin' Harp in the seven furlong test for 3-year-olds. The time was 1:30 2/5.

Washington Beats Dodgers In Tenth

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Shortstop Charley Neal's bobble of Norm Zauchin's grounder enabled Albie Pearson to score from second base with one out in the 10th inning and give Washington a 7-6 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday.

The Senators produced four hits in the ninth inning against Johnny Podres to score twice and tie the game at 6-6. Pearson opened the last of the 10th with a single and with one out Ron Negray walked Jim Lemon. Neal then booted Zauchin's grounder.

The Runner Wins 7th At Jamaica

JAMAICA, N. Y., April 1 (AP)—Brookmeade Stable's The Runner, responding to pressure in the stretch, drew off to a length and a half victory in the Outline Purse at Jamaica Race Track today.

The 3-year-old daughter of Olympia-First Flame, ridden by Sam Boulmetis, defeated six 3-year-old fillies in the moderate time of 1:05 2/5 for five and a half furlongs.

Elmendorf's Two Cent Stamp was second by two lengths over Jan Burke's Best of Show, the favorite.

Second choice with the crowd of 21,229, The Runner returned across the board mutuels of $6.80, $3.50 and $2.40. Two Cent Stamp paid $3.60 and $2.30 and Best of Show was $2.50 to show.

It was the second winner of the day for Jockey Boulmetis, who also rode Louis P. Doherty's Behead to victory as the $9.80 second choice in a five furlong whirl for maiden 2-year-old colts.

Boulmetis shared riding honors with red-hot Ismael Valenzuela, who booted home Ellen Faith at $10.00 and Hello Janie at $5.50.

D'Alesandro Asks PGA To Restore Open

Eastern Golf Event Sought This Year

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro asked the Professional Golfers Assn. Tuesday to reactivate the Eastern Open tournament this summer to fill a gap caused by cancellation of the Tam O'Shanter.

George S. May, promoter of the Chicago tournament, called off this year's event Monday night in a financial dispute with the PGA. The Tam dates were the last two weeks in July.

The PGA dropped the Eastern Open at Baltimore from its tournament circuit after eight years. It gave as the reason a date and geographical conflict with the PGA championship in Philadelphia which ends July 26.

Word of the Tam O'Shanter cancellation prompted D'Alesandro to wire J. Edwin Carter, the PGA tournament manager, and Thomas W. Crane, executive secretary.

"Baltimore hereby renews request for 1958 dates for ninth annual Eastern Open Tournament," he said. "Cancellation Tam tournament should not only make this possible but desirable."

The city has sponsored the Eastern Open at the municipal Mount Pleasant course.

Steve Bilko Sparks Redlegs To 9-2 Win

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Big Steve Bilko batted in four runs with two homers Tuesday to lead the Cincinnati Redlegs to a 9-2 exhibition game victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Curt Simmons turned back Cincinnati in order until the fourth inning when Vada Pinson beat out a bunt and scored two outs later on Bilko's first home run over the right field wall. Then consecutive doubles by Dan Morejon and Dutch Dotterer made it 3-0.

Alex Grammas singled to open the seventh and went to second on a sacrifice by Joe Padilla. Stan Palys batted for starting pitcher Hal Jeffcoat and walked. Pinson scored Grammas with the third of his three consecutive hits. Roy McMillan singled for two more runs, then Bilko smashed his second homer.

D.C. Auto Dealer Groups Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department Tuesday ordered an investigation of possible violations of antitrust laws in the purchase and sale of new cars, parts and acessories in the Washington area.

Papers filed in U. S. District Court authorized three attorneys in the antitrust division to conduct proceedings before a grand jury.

The attorneys were instructed to make the inquiry with particular attention to the activities of three dealer organizations. They were named as the Ford Dealers Advertising Fund, Inc., Greater Washington Chevrolet Dealers' Cooperative, Inc., and the Chrysler Dealers Assn.

The Justice Department declined to discuss what brought about the order.

D'Alesandro Still Visiting Washington Co.

By The Associated Press

One candidate went vote shopping Tuesday in Maryland's Democratic senatorial campaign. Six other candidates stayed home.

All the candidates, composing one of the biggest Statewide primary fields in years, began tapering off their activities for the week as the Easter holiday weekend approached.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore spent part of a third straight day in his concerted drive for support in Washington County, worth seven of the 77 unit votes necessary for a majority in the May 20 primary. His host during the extended stay is C. William Hetzer of Williamsport, who in 1956 backed George P. Mahoney in the senatorial primary.

James Bruce, another major candidate, also was closeted in his headquarters office a few blocks away.

"Just talking politics," he explained.

A spokesman for Bruce, endorsed by both leading party factions in Queen Annes County within the last 72 hours, said he expects similar endorsements "shortly" from other counties.

Clarence D. Long, still another aspirant for the nomination, spent the morning on the Johns Hopkins University campus, teaching economics. He made three scheduled appearances in Baltimore later in the day.

The other three candidates—Andrew J. Easter, William F. Fadler Jr. and Alden A. Potter—stuck close to home in the Washington area.

Statements ground out for and by the candidates from their publicity mills included:

A Mahoney declaration that he has "complete confidence" that Queen Annes voters will continue to back him, even though factional leaders have endorsed Bruce. He noted that, although the county went for Eisenhower and Republican Rep. Miller in 1956, he won a majority there in the general election against Republican Sen. John Marshall Butler.

A demand by Long that the Baltimore board of election supervisors immediately "abolish ghost registrations" in a slum clearance area just north of the downtown shopping district.

Supporting Attorney Hyman Pressman's challenge to the board yesterday on behalf of Harold Weiss, a House of Delegates hopeful, Long said "such fraudulent misrepresentations endanger our democracy and must be stamped with no uncertain haste."

In a formal challenge to the board, Pressman had listed about 500 voters still registered with the board at addresses where houses have been cleared away for construction of a new state office building.

Charles A. Dorsey, board chairman, said the supervisors had discussed the situation but were inclined to wait until after the primary before revising the registration books.

Jobless Pay Claims Drop

CHARLESTON (AP) — New claims for unemployment benefits dropped 26.1 per cent in West Virginia last week. Total claims showed a slight decline of 1.9 per cent from the previous week.

A report Tuesday from Director Henry L. Ash of the Department of Employment Security showed the number of claims last week from those filing for the first time for jobless benefits was 4,005, compared with 5,417 the previous week.

Claims must be renewed every two weeks in order to draw benefits for the maximum 24-week period. All claims last week totaled 31,509, down from 32,110 the previous week.

The department paid out $955,537 in unemployment benefits during the week. This was a drop of $90,154.

The balance in the unemployment compensation fund continued its decline, dropping $884,167 to $59,841,680. When it sinks below 50 million, participating employers are automatically assessed at the maximum contribution rate, regardless of experience rating, until it again tops 50 million.

Rising Sun Lodge Will Confer Rank

LONACONING — Rising Sun Lodge 86, Knights of Pythias, plans to have the third rank conferred upon three men today at 8 p. m. in the Pythian Hall.

William Orr Jr., Ellis Fazenbaker and Irvin Moore will receive the third rank. This is the first time the Rising Sun Lodge has planned to put on this rank work. All members are requested to be present. Important business will be transacted after this Rank Work.

Rising Sun Lodge No. 86, has voted to take over and sponsor the Pony League team of Lonaconing. All boys of last year's team are asked to turn in their uniforms so that they can be reissued to boys eligible to play on this team.

Parents of these boys are asked to give their assistance to help have the boys baseball teams maintained. Rising Sun Lodge is very interested in the welfare of the youth of the community and the townspeople cooperation is solicited for the support of this youth program, states Joseph H. Morton, district deputy grand chancellor.

fiber and raffia. This research was done by Gary Nesstelrodte. To Karen Minnick fell the task of gleaning all possible information about reed and Mary Propst wrote a summary about basketry and its history. These reports were shared with the entire class.

After this work was completed, the class began to weave baskets.

Miss Hinzman said the advance study and the familiarity with each of the tools and material made the task easier, more interesting and produced better workmanship than if the project had evolved into a task of basket weaving just to give the youngsters something to do.

Each student wove a basket, which he designed after determining what it would be used for. There are hanging baskets for flower pots, baskets for sewing, baskets for hot rolls, baskets for flowers, and just about every kind of basket that anyone would want.

After all the baskets were compieted, Miss Hinzman helped Linda Haines and Karen Minnick set up an attractive showcase display, showing the baskets and the materials and tools used. Karen Minnick wrote a summary of the whole project.

Mr. Foote said this is the first class in this county to attempt to weave baskets with solid wooden bottoms, and the work is among the finest he has seen.

The next step in this project, as a good-will Easter gesture, is to exchange the baskets with some woven by a class at another school.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Clothes-Buying Sense

It isn't the money that you spend but the time and thought that you spend in planning a wardrobe that determine the elegance and the chic that you achieve. Here are a half-dozen factors in smart buying:

Do you always shop alone? It is difficult not to be swayed by the enthusiastic — or impulsive thoughts — of a friend. When you shop alone, it is easier to make cool appraisals and to adhere to your previous plans.

Do you know how you really look, instead of just how you wish to look? It takes a good amount of figure study and acquaintance with your own coloring to see yourself as you really are.

Do you make it a rule never to buy any accessory or any article of clothing unless you can wear it with at least three costumes? You limit the effectiveness of your wardrobe the moment you break this rule. You also lose in the identification factor and personality quality that springs from a wellrelated wardrobe.

Do you have a definite plan? Unless there is a theme and scheme to your buying, you're not making your clothes dollars extend to their fullest buying capacity. In a planned wardrobe of well-chosen clothes, only a few items need to be retired and replaced in any one season.

Do you follow the trend in fashion so that you can always choose a style that is waxing and not waning?

Do you refuse to be tempted by any style, no matter how popular it may be, if you know it cannot be more than passably wearable for you? To settle for less than real figure flattery and color becomingness is a charm extravagance that no one can afford!

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 1 — (INS) When Anna Magnani was in Hollywood for "Wild Is the Wind" she told me that she had just read "Orpheus Descending," Tennessee Williams' play, and she would like to do it on the stage. She gets her wish, only instead of the stage she will star in the motion picture version. The Tempestuous Anna will have Anthony Franciosa as her co-star and Sidney Lumet as her director.

Thank goodness it will be made right here in Hollywood in late August or early September for United Artists. "Rose Tattoo," another Tennessee Williams play, also starred the Italian actress.

After the preview of "Indiscreet" at the Picwood Theatre a few nights ago, Cary Grant, Jack Warner and director Stanley Donen talked at Romanoff's for hours. "Indiscreet" went over like a million and the laughs were hearty and spontaneous. Everyone who saw it is sure that Cary and Stanley, who made this as an independent feature for their Grandson company have a hit.

"Indiscreet" will be released by Warner Bros. and Jack wants Cary to make another picture with Ingrid Bergman. Ingrid told Cary that any time he and Donen had a story she would be happy to co-star with him. So as soon as Warners comes up with a property it will be an encore for Ingrid, Cary and Stanley.

Patti Page joins the Ray Ryan contingent in Ft. Worth to promote the Desert Circus in Palm Springs. She leaves tomorrow night after her show "The Big Record" in New York and flies to Texas. From there she'll fly back to California to spend Easter with Charlie O'Curran.

While Patti was in Hollywood over the weekend she agreed to read the script of "Student Body." She told me that Jerry Wald would like to have her play a dramatic role instead of being just a singer in motion pictures.

Next season Patti's show will be called "The Patti Page Show" instead of "The Big Record."

I'm sure a part of the money Harold Hecht made from the Hecht - Hill - Lancaster company has gone into valuable paintings. At his cocktail party all of us admired a Greco, a Modigliani, a Goya and other priceless treasures.

Gloria (Mrs. Hecht) was a charming hostess and her chemise gown made in Rome was sent especially for this party. David Niven, who leaves shortly on a trip to promote "Around the World in 80 Days," admired the paintings as did the Tony Bennetts, who came with Jimmy McHugh.

Burt Lancaster was an early guest and left before I arrived. So did the Tony Curtises and Jerry Wald. David Lean, the Academy Award winning director, had quite a coterie around him congratulating him.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Just a few of us who knew Suzanne since she was a baby were invited to the dinner honoring Suzi who has grown into a charming young lady.

Later we went on to Ruth and Sol Siegel's. They gave a dinner in honor of Sol's birthday on the 31st and Mrs. Walter Lang's natal day, April 1.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Market Launches Second Quarter Slightly Lower

Losses of key stocks went from fractions to around a point. The declines centered in the heavy industrials and rails. Utilities and some other safer "defensive" issues did rather well.

News of deepening output declines in the steel and automobile industries emphasized the recession.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 40 cents to $161.50 with the industrials down $1.10, the rails down 70 cents and the utilities up 30 cents to a new high for 1958.

Of 1,137 issues traded, declines totaled 633 and advances 257.

New lows for the year outnumbered new highs by 45 to 30. It was the first time the ratio favored the lows since Feb. 25.

Volume was 2,070,000 shares compared with 2,050,000 yesterday.

Of the 16 most active stocks, 8 fell, 4 rose and 4 were unchanged.

Olin Mathieson was the most active stock, off 1⅛ at 34⅛ on 32,100 shares as it continued under pressure. Some fears of dividend cuts were expressed. Chrysler, also the subject of pessimistic discussion, dropped 1⅛ to 49 on 31,400 shares and was second. U. S. Steel was third, falling ⅜ to 57 on 30,900 shares.

British Liberals Coming Back?

"They never come back" used to be a dictum about baseball players demoted to the minors from the big leagues. It has been applied also to major political parties that dwindled away—like the Federalists and the Whigs in the United States and, more recently, the Liberals in Great Britain.

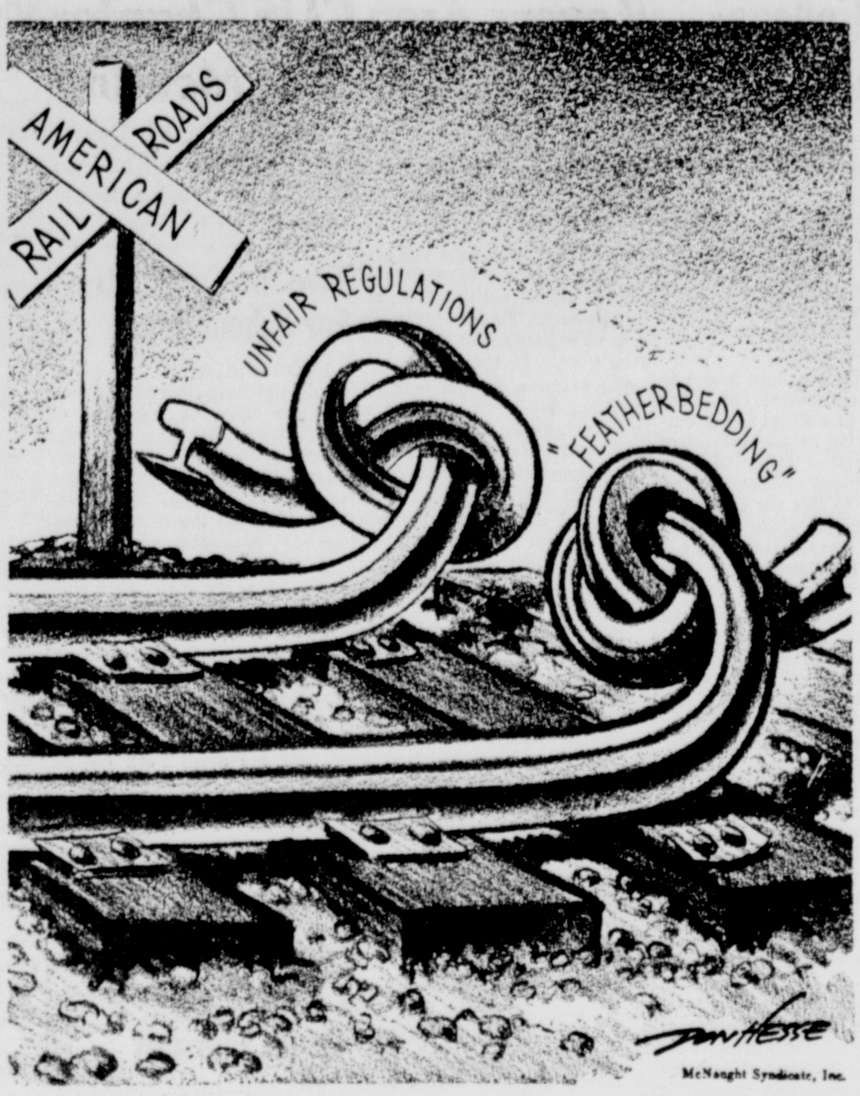

But in baseball they do come back—a score of eminent players, like "Perfect Game" Larsen, have confounded the dictum by returning from the minors to star a second time in the majors. And now it looks as though the Liberal Party is back in British politics as a force to be reckoned with again. After all, it had been the party of the great Gladstone, reformers John Bright and Richard Cobden, libertarians John Stuart Mill and John Morley, Lloyd George, the early Winston Churchill, Lord Keynes.

In the latest by-election for the House of Commons—on March 27 at Torrington, in southwest England—the Liberal, a grandson of former prime minister Asquith, took a seat away from the Conservative party. In two preceding by-elections — Kelvingrove (Glasgow) March 13, Rochdale February 12 — it was Labor that took over a Conservative seat because the Conservative candidate ran a bad third to the Liberal.

Yet in the general election of 1955 the Liberal party won only six Commons seats, in fact had felt itself too weak to contest more than 110 of the 625. In 1951 also, only six Liberals were elected. And this for the party that had held the prime ministership for most of the years between 1868, when the name "Liberal" replaced "Whig," to 1924, when Labor first took over!

The British know that their political structure, like ours, works best under a two-party system. So both the Conservatives and the Laborites are hoping that many a Britisher who now votes Liberal in a by-election, probably in protest against both major parties, will nevertheless go over to one of the two in the next general election.

No Longer A Right Of Way

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When Aled Davies, lobbyist for the meat packers, stood at the bar in the National Press Club and boasted about his close friendship with Ezra Taft Benson, he didn't do himself much good. But he did do some good for the American public.

Bill McGaffin of the Chicago Daily News promptly wrote a story about Davies' boast even though Davies made big noises about having McGaffin bounced from the Press Club.

The farmers who look to Benson for support hadn't entirely realized before that Ezra is more the friend of the meat packer and big processor than he is of the dirt farmer. His close friend Davies, for instance, is now lobbying against the O'Mahoney bill introduced by the Senator from Wyoming to transfer anti-trust jurisdiction over the meat packers to the Federal Trade Commission to act instead. Davies is opposing the transfer.

Davies is also the lobbyist working to stop the humane slaughter bill, already passed by the House of Representatives, thanks to Congresswoman Martha Griffiths of Michigan. This bill would require hogs and steers to be given a quick dose of gas before they are hammered over the head in the packing houses. In some cases dazed steers, knocked on the head but not killed, go careening around the slaughterhouse before they are finally butchered.

Lobbyist Davies has been working with the Republican members of the Senate Agriculture Committee to hold extensive hearings on this bill even though hearings were held two years ago. So far Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana, chairman, has hung back on taking action.

Meanwhile, Secretary Benson is reported a bit hesitant about his earlier plan to appoint his friend Davies as a delegate to the British Food Fair Aug. 28-Sept. 11 in London. Last year Davies went as a representative to the American Meat Institute, but this year Benson was planning to make him an official delegate of the Agriculture Department—until he got all the publicity over ghost-writing Benson's statement that he would not resign as Secretary of Agriculture.

Reuther's Critic

It happened in a closed-door session and the public isn't supposed to know about it, but Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater, who demanded an investigation of Auto Workers boss Walter Reuther, tried at the last minute to block him from testifying in his own defense.

"I see no need for either Mr. Kohler or Mr. Reuther to come down here," whined Goldwater behind closed doors. He obviously feared the quick-witted Reuther would outtalk Herbert Kohler in the windup testimony over the bitter, four-year strike at the Kohler Company's Sheboygan, Wis., plant.

"Do you think it would be fair to Walter Reuther now not to let him come down here?" demanded Chairman John McClellan, the Arkansas Democrat whose own philosophy is hardly pro-Reuther.

"I did not give a darn whether he came or not," snapped Goldwater, "but as far as Mr. Kohler was concerned, I do not think he is going to add much to this thing. Now, as to Mr. Reuther we have lots of questions we can ask him."

"I am not going to be a party to denying him the right to testify before this committee," snorted McClellan.

"I just do not think that he is going to add anything, and I do not care if he comes or not," shrugged Goldwater. "And the same way with Mr. Kohler because Mr. Kohler, I feel certain, does not know too much about this."

Newest Ambassador

Latest addition to the diplomatic corps is svelte, handsome Ambassador Hector Santaella, representative of the new democratic government of Venezuela which recently kicked out long-time terrorist dictator Perez Jimenez.

Educated at Texas A. & M. University and Harvard, Ambassador Santaella is a businessman who understands the problems of American oil companies yet was arrested three times by hated police chief Pedro Estrada because he championed democracy.

Calling on President Eisenhower to present his credentials, he came back impressed.

"The President was in excellent health, alert, charming, sympathetic," he said. "He has a warm, dynamic personality."

Despite the charming reception Ike gave to the new Venezuelan ambassador, two days later he slapped a restriction on Venezuela where it hurts most—imports of Venezuelan oil. The diplomatic corps was flabbergasted over the fact that Eisenhower delivered a full-dress speech one day last week emphasizing the importance of foreign trade and on the same day, slapped new American restrictions on foreign trade.

Note: Eisenhower was under pressure from Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas and some of Ike's Texas oil friends to further curtail oil imports.

Russian Ban On Atomic Tests Is Huge Hoax

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The biggest hoax of our times is the Soviet-inspired drive to stop the testing of nuclear weapons.

Many well-meaning, loyal citizens have been misled by the propaganda, and many people throughout the world have been scared about the supposed ill-effects of "fall-out" from the tests.

Authoritative evidence has been produced again and again by reputable scientists that "fall-out" from nuclear-weapons tests has not added any real danger. But somehow this evidence is constantly ignored, and the Soviet propaganda campaign moves on because the truth is not conspicuously displayed.

Over the weekend came a point statement from 160 scientists gathered at Lausanne, Switzerland, where, under the auspices of the Swiss Academy of Medicine, a three-day symposium was held "to determine all the long-range consequences of radioactivity." There were representatives present from the United States, France, Italy, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium, Norway and Switzerland. An invitation to attend was declined by Soviet scientists.

"Thanks mainly to the extensive and painstaking research conducted in the Angle-Saxon countries, it appears well established that the increase in atmospheric radioactivity and in radioactive fall-out does not play any essential part and does not have any practical importance when compared to natural radiation.

"The values which have been recorded do not, in any case, constitute a danger to the health of mankind."

Nothing could be more explicit and reassuring. Yet this very point has been made again and again, as, for instance, by the National Academy of Sciences in America. But within a short time after such pronouncements are issued, there are always a few scientists who come out with rebuttals or with arguments that the layman cannot understand, but which keep the scare going. Nothing pleases Moscow more.

It may or may not be significant that some of the persons in the scientific field here and abroad who hold ideological attitudes similar to the Communists are among the most ardent of the advocates of the theory that nuclear-weapons tests are highly dangerous. One of the scientists in the forefront of the agitation is a man who was refused security clearance by our government in certain research work. He may have been unjustly accused, and it may, of course, be sheer coincidence that he is arguing so vehemently against the determination made by the Atomic Energy Commission to continue testing.

The agitation is not confined to this country. West Germany is in the midst of demonstrations fomented by Communist sympathizers who want no atomic weapons supplied to NATO forces there.

Most sensational now, however, is the Soviet government's announcement that it will stop testing nuclear weapons on its own and will not ask for any international agreement before doing so. This is already hailed in some quarters here as a smart propaganda move. But are we so gullible as to applaud a policy which can be changed at will in three or six months, but which for the time being would, if concurred in here, stop more important American tests just as they are about to be made?

In this connection, it is interesting to note that Dr. Willard F. Libby, famed scientist who is a member of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, said in a speech at the Switzerland meeting last week that a bomb had been fired underground in recent tests in Nevada and that "essentially no radioactivity, even that belonging to such a volatile material as radioactive krypton, escaped to any considerable degree."

Dr. Libby says this means "it is possible at least in certain types of weapons tests to contain and eliminate radioactive fall-out." He points out, too, that "persons living at high altitudes on granitic rocks always have received extra radiation many times greater than is contained in the radioactive fall-out from the testing of nuclear weapons," and even those living on certain sedimentary rocks at sea level always have received about ten to twenty times the present fall-out dose."

Despite the existence of biological hazards of one kind or another constantly affecting a small percentage of the world's population due to medical X-rays, the sun's rays and other natural causes, life has to go on. Exploratory tests are needed to advance peaceful as well as military uses of atomic energy. Testing is important, moreover, because deterrent weapons have to be developed by the United States so as to keep some one-man government from suddenly plunging the world into a war that could wipe out millions of lives. If Soviet Russia could prevent the use of nuclear bombs, her conventional forces are big enough today to conquer Western Europe. So the Soviet game is to get the West to give up nuclear weapons while the Communist armies of Russia and Red China dominate Europe and Asia.

These Days

Time Marches On

In 1954, the Committee for Economic Development, which was founded by Paul Hoffman, took the position that the United States "reduce our tariffs and other barriers to foreign trade on a gradual and selective basis." This same committee in March 1958 takes the same position despite the influx of cheap-labor, low-taxes, subsidized foreign goods into the American market at a time of spiraling unemployment in American industry.

One would imagine that Thomas D. Cabot, formerly president of the United Fruit Company, who is responsible for the 1958 report, would recognize that time marches on and that it could be perilous for this country to be further weakened by discontented and even frightened labor. Unemployment is the most serious social disease that we can face; the ravages of it are visible for decades.

Cabot's reasoning is most interesting. First he quotes Khrushchev as saying:

"We declare war upon you—excuse me for using such an expression—in the peaceful field of trade.

"We declare a war. We will win over the United States. The threat to the United States is not the ICBM, but in the field of peaceful production. We are relentless in this and it will prove the superiority of our system."

Having said this, Cabot proceeds to establish:

"As far as foreign trade is concerned, this is no idle boast. Soviet Bloc-Free World trade increased 77 per cent from 1952 to 1956. In 1956 the Bloc accounted for over ten per cent of the total trade of seven Free World under-developed countries. Over twenty per cent of the total trade of Afghanistan, Iceland, Egypt and Yugoslavia was with Bloc countries; about seventeen per cent of Turkey's, sixteen per cent of Burma's and twelve per cent of Iran's.

"Western Europe and Latin America, areas of crucial importance to the United States, also figured prominently in Soviet Bloc trade in 1956. Sixty-eight per cent of the Bloc's total external trade in 1956, and seventy per cent of the increase in the Bloc's total foreign trade from 1952 to 1956, occurred with Western Europe . . ."

What has actually happened is an unexpected and even astonishing development in international banking and trade, namely, that Soviet Russia has become a large-scale capitalist in world banking and merchandising. Soviet Russia lends money, lends goods, sells goods, gives away goods, underwrites developments, barters, trades and is flexible on the subject of hard or soft currency, possessing both in enormous quantities. Adequate statistics are unavailable as to the total amount of gold possessed by Soviet Russia. There have been estimates that it is as high as $12,000,000,000 —maybe more. Whatever it is, Russian gold has been appearing on the free gold market, particularly in the London Gold Exchange. It is suspected, but not established, that some Russian gold has appeared in Swiss banks to be used in take-over activities in this country and in Great Britain.

The C. E. D. is apparently conscious of this new-type capitalistic activity on the part of Soviet Russia and is duly frightened by it. But Soviet Russia does not maintain a free market within the Soviet Universal State. There all goods are closely controlled, locally manufactured, imported, exported. As the government is the sole purchaser of the total manufacture and of the total import, no tariff is necessary. In Soviet Russia, the government owns and manages the means of production, distribution and exchange and therefore in the economic field, the government's decisions are not questionable by private persons.

Let us take an example. Let us say that Soviet Russia, for political reasons, decides to buy an enormous share of the Brazilian coffee crop—more coffee than can be consumed in Russia where the people prefer tea.

This would be a barter transaction between the two governments. It would undoubtedly be subject to political as well as economic considerations. The price of coffee, per pound or per ton, would be decided along political lines without regard to economic conditions. It would be Soviet Russia's hope to recoup whatever losses developed by selling the coffee elsewhere or take the loss as a cost of the cold war. The objective of the transaction would be to wean Brazil away from the United States and to open its doors to Communist activities.

This is unrelated to tariffs, free trade or the free market. It is a new device developed first by Dr. Schacht of Hitler's Germany.

Baering Down On The News

That revolution in Indonesia would have kept George Washington busy crossing the Delaware to 3,184 islands.

It's an archipelago form of government. Or a busted-up peninsula.

When you live on an archipelago, you do so one island at a time. You have to join the navy in order to get into the army.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

It was five o'clock. He came out of the Henry Heide Candy Company office, removed his hat in the elevator, put it on in the lobby, and walked out of the building. He was almost as broad as he was tall. The eyes were underscored with care and laughter. He moved into the river of pedestrians and, in a moment, was lost in a stream of undulating hats.

His name is Robert A. Lewis. He is 40, lives in Old Tappan, New Jersey, has a wife, five children. Just another commuter.

Thirteen years ago he poured the coal to the Enola Gay. The time was 2:45 a. m. She ran down the Tinian runway low and fat and a lot of men held their breath as she lifted slowly and went out to sea and made a wide turn and climbed to 4,000 feet. She headed north to Japan. In her belly was the first atomic bomb ever to be dropped on people.

The day was August 6th, 1945. There were 12 men aboard and they had been briefed about the new bomb. Some understood it. Some took it for granted. In the bomb bay, Captain Parsons, USN, sorted his wrenches and screwdrivers. In a few hours, the captain would arm the bomb.

It was a big baby, that first one. It measured about 18 feet from one end to the other and it had a big 6-inch naval rifle running down the middle. It weighed 8,900 pounds. The B-29 droned northward. Captain Lewis dozed with his ears awake. Colonel Paul Tibbetts, the boss, sat watching the yoke jump in front of him. The Enola Gay was on automatic pilot and he watched the electronic brain make corrections.

It was like this hour after hour. Dawn sneaked into the sky like a slow blush. The radio operator had a message. The B-29 that was scouting far ahead had just reported leaving Hiroshima. The primary target would be wide open. Scattered clouds below, that's all. Another message. Word from the two B-29s that would accompany Enola Gay. They were at Iwo Jima, waiting.

Tibbetts gave the order to start climbing. She pulled up slow and sedate. One man worked at a big radio in the bombing section. His job was to find out if the Japanese tried to jam Enola Gay's radio signals. The bomb would be detonated by radio signal, if possible. If not, it would be set off by air pressure at 1,800 feet. If the bomb was to be armed, and the Japanese sent the proper signal at the proper wavelength, Enola Gay would become momentarily, a star.

They picked up their escort. At 32,000 feet, the three B-29s trailed white. Kyushu came up on the left and Captain Parsons dropped into the bomb bay and used his wrenches and screwdrivers. He came back up nodding soberly. The bombardier sat at his eyepiece all the way up Bungo Strait. The sun was bright. It was a pretty morning.

Enola Gay made the final run steady and alone. The escorts—chicken—turned for home. Kure appeared under the right wing and then Hiroshima, fat and bright and busy. There was a long wait. No one said "Bomb away!" The plane lightened suddenly and lifted like an express elevator and the 12 men knew. Tibbetts looked at Lewis. The captain made a wide two mile turn to the right. He turned away 150 degrees from Hiroshima. Everyone donned the dark Navy glasses.

Captain Lewis found that he could not pilot the plane with the glasses. He dropped them over his throat. He looked at his watch. Exactly 43 seconds after the plane had lightened, he saw Enola Gay brighten to a dazzling whiteness. She was climbing at 180 miles per hour, so that the wings and rudder could absorb the shock. Fifteen seconds later, the ship bounced and Tibbetts yelled: "Ack-ack!" Lewis shook his head no. A few seconds later, a second shock, this one caroming off the ground, hit the plane.

They waited a minute, then turned back to Hiroshima for a look. A mountain of smoke was building into the sky. It was colored rose and green and yellow. It was boiling. Far below, the city was in flames and, from Enola Gay, the men could watch the fire race up both sides of the river into the hills. "My God!" said Lewis. "My good God!"

Below, 80,000 Japanese were dead. Far behind Enola Gay, one million Americans were alive. A fourth of these would have died if they had had to assault the Japanese home islands to win the war. Enola Gay headed back to Tinian.

In the river of pedestrians, Robert A. Lewis, 40, hurried down to the subway. A girl bumped into him. His hat fell off. "I beg your pardon," he said. She nodded curtly. "Take it easy," she said. "You going to a fire or something?" . . .

Learning To Get Along After Paralyzing Stroke

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Deller

Motivation is the all-important element in the successful treatment of any disease. The person who is determined to speed recovery resumes his normal activities sooner than the one who enjoys invalidism. This is most noticeable after operations, fractured bones, heart attacks, and pneumonia.

Apoplexy victims fall into the same category—up to a certain point. Facing paralysis is discouraging, but if rehabilitative exercises are started soon after the acute stage passes, convalescence will be shortened.

Yet the will to recover is not the only factor in this illness. Some strokes do more damage than others. If the involved arm does not respond to adequate treatment and tests of muscles show no response, the patient must resort to other plans. Here again, motivation plays a role in that the sensible and optimistic person will decide to make the most of what he has.

The individual with a paralyzed arm that fails to improve after a year of therapy must learn to get along without it. He is no worse off than the person who has lost his arm in an accident. In many ways he is better off because he can utilize the same attachments used to move the fingers and elbows of an artificial limb. A living though paralyzed arm has sensation and in this respect is more efficient than a prosthesis. Braces are devised to support the leg and offer the stroke victim the same help in walking as they do individuals paralyzed by polio.

It is a waste of time and money to continue to encourage a paralyzed individual when the chances are nil that he ever will be able to use an affected arm or leg. It would be better for him to learn to get along with what remains. He may be unable to resume his former occupation but will find starting from scratch challenging.

A highly respected industrialist was extremely happy the day he mastered a few simple tasks at home, which meant he could get along alone. He was resigned to the fact that his work days were over but, being well adjusted emotionally, was determined to enjoy his remaining days even though handicapped. He said: "I'm thankful my heart and mind are good and I'm not in pain. Losing the use of an arm is better than having cancer or other serious illnesses."

TOMORROW: Pollen allergy.

INFLAMED BLADDER

J. S. writes: Is cystitis due to kidney trouble?

REPLY

Inflammation of the bladder can occur by itself or as a result of disorders anywhere along the urinary tract, including the kidneys. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on cystitis.

FACIAL PARALYSIS

M. T. writes: Is Bell's palsy due to a stroke?

REPLY

Ordinary Bell's palsy (facial paralysis) is due to neuritis of the facial nerve, following inflammation or exposure to cold. A somewhat similar but less common type of facial paralysis results from stroke.

CURVED AT BIRTH

Mrs. Y. writes: Could a person be born with curvature of the spine?

REPLY

Yes. Structural defects such as abnormalities of the vertebrae may be present at birth. In later childhood, the spine may become curved abnormally because of rickets or poor posture.

MEDICARE

Mrs. D. writes: Are all dependents of men in service entitled to free medical care under the new government program?

REPLY

The new Medicare program allows dependents of military personnel to receive medical care from government facilities. When these are not available they can receive civilian medical care. It is not entirely free because the patient must pay a percentage of the hospital bill.

SINUS DRAINAGE

S. D. writes: If a sinus discharge drains down the throat, can it cause stomach trouble?

REPLY

Some individuals become nauseated by postnasal drip but the infected material does not damage the stomach. The gastric acids are so strong they are capable of killing bacteria that are swallowed.

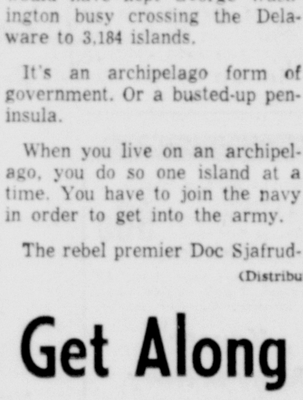

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Deller will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Keeper of the general store in a small New Hampshire village bought a fresh stock from a Boston wholsaler, but neglected to pay for it. The wholesaler, his dunning letters ignored, wrote to the local banker to check on his customer's credit rating, to the county judge to ask for the name of the best lawyer in those parts, and to the station agent to make sure the goods had been delivered in the first place.

Back came this note: "As stationmaster I delivered your goods okay, and as owner of the store, signed receipt for same. As bank president, I okay my credit. As judge, I recommend myself as the best lawyer in these parts. And, if I wasn't the pastor, too, I'd tell you to go jump in the lake!"

Three Killed In Headon Crash

Three persons were killed instantly yesterday afternoon when two cars collided on Pennsylvania Route 53 about 11 miles south of Somerset .

One of the victims was identified by police as Melvin Carlin, 42, of New York State. The two other victims had not been positively identified early today.

Another man and two children were in the car being operated south on Route 53 by Carlin. The children, authorities said, were uninjured, although the other man was taken to Somerset Community Hospital with a fractured nose. His condition apparently is not serious.

Authorities are attempting to identify a man and woman who were also killed in the crash as they were traveling north on Route 53.

Robert Halverson, coroner of Somerset County, who was assisting in trying to identify the two other victims, said they were either from Fayette County, Pa., or nearby West Virginia.

Halverson said the other car was registered in the name of a man from Farmington, Pa. He said the man had loaned the car to a couple from Brandenville, W. Va. Halverson declined to give any names.

Hoppenwasser was riding in the car occupied by Carlin. The latter's two sons, John, 15, and Robert, 11, escaped injury, the hospital said.

Presumed relatives were notified and were on their way to a funeral home in Rockwood to assist in identifying the victims.

Mr. Halverson, who said one victim was identified as Carlin, said that he was either from New York City or Scarsdale as two addresses were on his person.

Wanted To Join Rebels In Cuba

Three youths arrested near Winchester, Va., Monday night in connection with the armed robbery of $40 and the auto of a Mannington, W. Va. groceryman, last night were lodged in Preston County Jail in Kingwood, quite a distance from their destination, Cuba.

They are Forrest Lipscomb, 20, of Thomas, W. Va., Patrick Patterson, 18, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Harry E. Voelker, 23, of McKeesport, Pa. Virginia troopers and Winchester police, who arrested the trio at a roadblock on U. S. 50 west of Winchester, said the youths informed them they were bound for Cuba to join the rebel forces of Fidel Castro.

West Virginia authorities at Kingwood yesterday swore out warrants of armed robbery against Lipscomb and Patterson, according to a sheriff's deputy at the Preston County Jail, who said the warrants were obtained from Justice of the Peace S. W. Pritt.

A preliminary hearing will probably be held today in order that bond may be set, the deputy said. Virginia authorities released the three youths to West Virginia authorities after the trio waived extradition.

"We're going to join Castro in Cuba," Lipscomb told a reporter. "We'll use these weapons until we can get something better." Police found in their possession a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun and some shells, a .22 caliber revolver, a bayonet, a hunting knife, a set of throwing knives and a hacksaw.

Virginia State Trooper Percy S. Click said Lipscomb and Patterson were hitchhiking near Silver Lake, W. Va., where they were given a ride by David Brown, Route 1, Mannington, W. Va.

The trooper said the pair robbed Brown of $40, took his car and left him on the road. The pair then went to Lipscomb's house where they picked up Voelker and their luggage, Trooper Click said.

Stolen Car Found Damaged

An automobile stolen here Sunday night was located yesterday in a wooded area between Mt. Savage and Wellersburg, Pa.

The auto had been damaged extensively, according to the owner, Neal Wilson, 424 Warwick Avenue, who said both front wheels of the car were missing.

A farmer who lives in the area informed State Police that the car was parked in a lane near the woods. Mr. Wilson said a crowbar apparently had been used in an attempt to get into the trunk.

The inside of the car was damaged extensively, a front vent window was smashed and the ignition was knocked out of the dashboard. The culprit apparently had crossed wires to start the motor.

Mr. Wilson said the contents of a couple of brief cases were scattered about the inside of the car. A flashlight, glasses and other items were missing from the glove compartment.

Vets Cautioned To Keep Insurance

GI insurance policyholders who plan to re-enter military service should not drop their policies in the belief they will receive the so-called "free $10,000 insurance" or indemnity.

R. T. Brown, acting manager of the Baltimore Regional Office of the Veterans Administration, notified the local contact representative that the indemnity coverage ended more than a year ago on January 1, 1957.

An increasing number of veterans who are returning to service are making this mistake, Mr. Brown said. They apparently do not know that the "free insurance" is no longer available in the armed forces. It was abolished by the Survivors' Benefits Act, which substituted increased compensation rates for service-connected deaths.

Brown warned that veterans who drop their insurance near the end of a five-year term period may lose it entirely.

County, State, City Offices To Close On Friday

City, county and state offices will be closed April 4 in observance of Good Friday, a legal state holiday.

Member banks of the Cumberland Clearing House will be closed on Good Friday, but will open from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Trial Magistrates Court, Juvenile Court and Police Court will be closed both Friday and Saturday. The state's attorney's office will observe the Friday holiday.

Offices in City Hall will close at noon on Friday and remain closed until Monday. Allegany County Court House will close on Friday, but will be open until noon on Saturday.

Executive Director Robert B. Kimble also has said all Maryland Department of Employment Security offices will observe the Good Friday holiday.

18 More Register For Primary Vote

Touring registrars signed up 18 more prospective new voters yesterday for the May 20 primary election.

At Shaft, Miss Bessie R. Baird and John J. Zapf, the deputy registrars who are touring the county, signed up 13 residents, all Republicans. Six were men and seven women. They also stopped at Wrights Crossing to register one Republican man.

Last night at Zihlman, there were four registrants, split evenly between the sexes and the major parties. One man and one woman signed up as Republicans and one man and one woman registered as Democrats.

Today, Miss Baird and Mr. Zapf will sit at the Ellerslie Community Building from 2 until 5 p. m. and at the Corriganville Fire Hall from 6 until 9 p. m. Tomorrow they will be at the LaVale Fire Hall from 2 until 5 p. m. and again from 6 until 9 p. m.

Equity Suit Filed

Manson M. Durr has filed an equity suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against Isabel M. Durr.

Judge Harris Overrules Dismissal Move

Files Opinions In Related Cases

Opinions in two related damage suits resulting from a fatal automobile accident last April near Green Spring, W. Va., in which three teen-age boys were fatally injured were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris in overruling motions to dismiss the two cases.

The more detailed opinion was filed in the case brought by Fred H. Anderson, administrator of the estate of Loy James Wagner, vs. Dorothy Wagner Patch, administratrix of the estate of Bruce Lee Wagner.

The declaration in this case alleges that on or about April 27, 1957, Bruce Lee Wagner was operating an automobile in Hampshire County, W. Va., proceeding from Green Spring toward Oldtown. Loy James Wagner was a passenger in the car operated by his brother. It struck a tree and both Wagner boys and another youth were fatally injured.

Bruce C. Wagner was owner of the automobile which his son was driving and the father had a public liability insurance policy on the vehicle. The two deceased boys and Allen A. Wagner, who was injured, were born to the marriage of Bruce C. Wagner and Dorothy Wagner Patch, now absolutely divorced.

The motion to dismiss is based on the defendant's contention that this action in effect is between a parent and child and is not maintainable in the State of Maryland.

Judge Harris explains in his seven-page opinion in this case that the underlying purpose of the laws and the doctrine to prevent suits between parents and their children is to preserve the harmony of the family relationship. He decides that there is no basis to invoke this rule in this case. Therefore, he overrules the motion to dismiss.

The second and less detailed opinion was filed in the suit brought by Allen A. Wagner, an infant, by Bruce C. Wagner, parent, natural guardian and next friend, vs. Dorothy Wagner Patch, administratrix of the estate of Bruce Lee Wagner.

Allen A. Wagner received severe and painful injuries in the fatal crash but managed to survive.

Judge Harris suggests in this opinion that if tried, the two cases would be consolidated.

Again in this case, counsel for the defendant contends in his motion to dismiss that the action is between a parent and child and is not maintainable in this state. In view of his opinion in the other case, Judge Harris rules that this action is between brother and brother and not between parent and child. But if it were between parent and child, it would be maintainable for the same reasons as he stated in the other opinion.

In both cases, Judge Harris signed orders overruling the motions for dismissal.

Union To Forego Wage Boost Bid

A local craft union announced this week it is not going out for a wage increase this year.

It is Local 489, Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, which has its headquarters in the Allegany Labor Temple here.

Charles L. Cross, business agent, said members of the local decided at a recent meeting, to renew the present contract with plumbing and heating contractors on May 1.

He said the union will not, at present, seek a wage increase since members felt, with conditions as they are, they would rather encourage work.

Income Tax Deadline Is April 15

You have less than two weeks in which to file your 1957 federal and state income tax returns—the deadline for both being April 15.

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service, which maintains offices in the Post Office, said yesterday taxpayers will be wise to visit the office for assistance as soon as possible.

At present, business is rather slow, although during the last week or 10 days it has a tendency to pick up. The offices on the second floor of the Post Office will be open on Good Friday this week.

The offices also be open Monday through Friday prior to the April 15 deadline, from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m. daily.

Auditors are also assisting residents who are filing returns of their Maryland state income taxes at the local office of the State Comptroller, 9 Market Street.

Office hours are from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Edward V. Welsh, manager of the office here, said anyone desiring information on filing tax returns may call his office, PA 4-3223.

EASTER SEAL LUCKY BUCKS NEEDED NOW

The next 222 bucks mailed for Easter Seals to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children will be lucky for crippled children in this section because that's the number of dollars needed to make the 1958 seal campaign total $6,500.

Over 23,000 residents of Allegany County received Easter Seals in the mail early last month, and a check at headquarters yesterday showed $6,278 had been received in returns.

Much more than $6,500 is needed, however, to finance the treatment of crippled and handicapped children in this section, and it is hoped that at least $12,000 will be received during the Easter season.

Don't hold back if you have not mailed your money for the seals. It's possible that the bucks that haven't been returned are the dollars the League for Crippled Children needs to meet this year's budget.

Zoning Ruling Reversed By Appeals Court

Award To Local Man Is Upheld

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Court of Appeals said Tuesday that existence of zoning law violations in a neighborhood is no reason for permitting further violations.

It reversed a St. Mary's County decision which permitted the Lexington Park Theater Co. to extend its building into a 25-foot back yard and use the second floor for apartment dwellings.

The county Zoning and Planning Commission had refused such permission but was reversed by the Board of Zoning Appeals. The board said the commission had "overlooked or condoned" other minor violations in the neighborhood and acted arbitrarily and capriciously in the theater case.

Circuit Court upheld the appeals board, but the Court of Appeals ruled against them.

"Ill-Advised"

"This court has held that it is not proper to consider the existence of surrounding ill-advised or illegal variances as grounds for granting additional variances," it said.

It said that under the county's zoning ordinance the theater company would have to have shown "unwarranted hardship and injustice" from zoning laws in order to have been granted a variance and that it failed to do this.

The zoning commission had approved use of the upstairs of the building for offices but not for apartments. The downstairs contain a retail store and lobby for the theater which is in an adjoining building.

Upholds Judgment

In another opinion filed the court upheld an Allegany County Circuit Court judgment awarding 60 per cent permanent partial disability to Clarence Mellott of Cumberland

Mellott, a road construction worker, slipped and fell while lifting a pipe in April, 1955. His employer, the Baughman Contracting Co., claimed that his back trouble was largely due to a previous injury. The Industrial Accident Commission had awarded him only 5 per cent permanent partial disability from the 1955 injury.

The Court of Appeals said there was legally sufficient medical evidence for the jury to arrive at a larger finding and agree with Mellott's contention that his previous back injury, in another location of the back, had healed.

Jaycee Meeting Is Postponed

Basket Weaving Used In Modern Teaching Method

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

A project in modern teaching, designed to help children learn by arousing their natural curiosity, has just been completed with excellent results at Northeast School.

Principal Raymond Skidmore and Theodore Foote, art supervisor for the Board of Education, agree that Miss Betty Hinzman, sixth grade teacher and her class of busy sixth graders have enjoyed an unusual learning experience and have demonstrated how much can be learned from a single project.

Miss Hinzman and one of her pupils, Karen Minnick, organized a display which included small bottles of shellac, coping saws, brushes, plywood, cement, jute, reed, raffia, bottles of water and finished baskets. The finished baskets were borrowed from students who wove them at another school.

As the display began to arouse the curiosity of the class, many questions were raised. These questions were recorded and organized on a work sheet for future reference.

This led to the main purpose of the project. Students were encouraged to use reference materials and resource people and agreed upon methods of procedure.

When the questions were finally organized the sixth graders requested Mr. Foote to help answer some of them, so an appointment was made for him to visit the school.

During the panel, and discussion with Mr. Foote, the class decided they needed to know more about the sources of materials to be used and the characteristics of the materials.

The next step was to go to reference books and reference materials. Encyclopedias, weaving books and other works were consulted, with all members of the class doing some phase of the investigation.

Local Chamber To Interview 3 Candidates

Three candidates for the position of manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will be interviewed during the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Washington April 28-30.

The position will be open April 15 when Anthony Saeli, manager of the local chamber since 1951, assumes his duties as executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of Alexandria, Va.

Officials said a committee headed by Henry W. Price, national councilor, has narrowed applicants down to three, all experienced Chamber executives.

Mr. Price and Charles S Catherman Jr., president, with C. William Gilchrist and Earl D. Chaney, will be official delegates to the U. S. Chamber meeting and are making arrangements to meet the applicants during the Washington meeting.

Plans are also being made to have the applicants stop here on their way to or from the meeting, to meet the full committee.

Police Probe Garage Fire

Norman Wallace reported to police he discovered the awnings —which he had stored in his concrete block garage — afire when he returned home from a short trip about 4:30 p. m.

He was able to extinguish the blaze with a water hose, but reported the awnings destroyed. The sash of a window in the garage also was badly charred by the flames.

Mr. Wallace told the officer he had left home about a half hour earlier and that nothing was amiss at that time.

Schools To Be Out; Drivers Urged To Be Careful

Frostburg's Mayor James Re-elected

Three Councilmen Returned; Evans Defeated By Kenney

Mayor Joseph E. James and three incumbent city councilmen were returned to office yesterday in Frostburg's municipal election which saw Councilman James H. Evans defeated in his bid for re-election.

For Mayor:

Joseph E. James	764
Dr. Adam D. Baer	474

For Councilman:

T. William Preston	891
Herbert E. Loar	837
William W. Sluss Jr.	805
James P. Kenney	670
James H. Evans	516
Kenneth A. Lowery	307
G. Victor Lammert	213

Mayor James was re-elected for his second two-year term, having decided to run after first indicating he would not seek the office again. Although winner of his own race handily, Mayor James trailed three of the councilmen in the total number of votes received.

Mr. Kenney, the only new member of the council, is employed at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory as a pipefitter and plumber. He served seven years as water superintendent for the city and previously worked for four years in the Water Department before becoming its head. He stated when filing for candidacy that he wanted to improve the water distribution system of Frostburg.

Councilman Herbert Loar is a former state and county tax collector, is owner and manager of Loar's Market on West Main Street in Frostburg, and has been a director for 24 years of the Equitable Savings and Loan Society.

He was elected to office for the second time in yesterday's balloting.

Appointees Elected

The remaining two councilmen returned to office, William Preston and William Sluss, were elected after both had been appointed to the city council. In succeeding this time, Mr. Preston, who was appointed to office replacing the late William Eberly, rebounded from his defeat as a candidate two years ago.

He is the present water commissioner and was the first incumbent to file for election. Mr. Preston serves on the board of directors of the Frostburg Industrial Development Company and is active in veterans' organizations.

Mr. Sluss, appointed to his present position as police commissioner last fall when G. Franklin Martens accepted the post of assistant water superintendent, formerly served as street commissioner for Frostburg.

Newly-elected councilman Kenney was stricken ill yesterday afternoon and taken to Miners Hospital. His illness was diagnosed as appendicitis and surgery is pending, hospital attendants stated. He was reported "resting quietly" last night.

Wertz, mainstay of the Cleveland hitting attack, broke the ankle sliding into second base and will be out of action for about 10 weeks.

Dupas, Fuentes Bout Approved By Ring Group

Disregards Warning By Attorney General

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Louisiana State Athletic Commission Tuesday night disregarded the warning of an assistant attorney general and reaffirmed its approval of the Ralph Dupas - Ramon Fuentes boxing match April 7.

Asst. Atty. Gen. John Jackson had advised the commission earlier in the day that such a bout would violate a state law banning racially mixed fights.

The commission voted unanimously to uphold its prior sanction of the fight and said that Dupas' racial status "should remain status quo until finally decided by the judiciary."

Appeals Judge Richard McBride Monday reversed a lower court ruling which had ordered the city of New Orleans to issue Dupas a birth certificate showing him to be white.

Cancellation Of Tam Golf May Touch Off Rebellion

May Refuses To Pay Entry Fees To PGA; Offers Suggestions

By BOB GLASS

CHICAGO, April 1 (INS) — The pin that burst the bubble in the cancellation of Chicago's two major golf tournaments this year—the All-American Invitational and the World Championship of Golf—threatened today to mushroom into a nationwide rebellion against the Professional Golfers' Association.

George S. May, sponsor of the two Tam O'Shanter tourneys, told newsmen in his executive offices that he under no circumstances "would hold any tournament this year."

The 67-year-old operator of the famed Tam O' Shanter course, cancelled the two meets last night because he refused to pay the entry fees to the PGA.

Discrimination Charged

May estimated that his club would have to pay $40,000 to the PGA. "This is plain discrimination," he said.

The Tam O' Shanter president added that he would consider holding the tournaments in 1959 "if they let me write my own ticket."

May said as sponsor of a tournament, he had a perfect right to take his action. He picked up a telegram he received from Bill Bryant, president of the California Country club in Whittier. It read:

"Congratulations on your stand by refusing to pay entry fees to the PGA. Sponsors throughout the country will back you."

Earlier, Illinois PGA President Harry Pezzullo, went along with May and said "it's a shame they treat George S. May differently than other sponsors."

Asked if he thought the other sponsors would go along with him and refuse to pay entry fees, he answered:

"I had a lot of encouragement from other sponsors last November at the PGA annual meeting in Long Beach, Calif. I would have agreed then if they would have given me the contract but I didn't get it until 10 days ago and I didn't know anything about the entry fee clause."

At the same time, May said he sympathized with the PGA because of what he called "its terrific expenses in holding tournaments." He added:

"It costs the PGA about $86,000 a year to run the tournaments and they have a tough time getting the money."

May said he had an answer. He pointed out that if players had to pay a yearly fee to compete, "purses would be higher and the PGA would not have to resort to other methods of raising money." He added:

Suggests Players Pay

"If the top 50 players in the country would pay $2,000 a year, they could compete in all the tournaments. Then, they (the PGA) could collect $100 apiece from the other players. In this way, two tournaments would be held.

"When players in the $100 class get better, then they would compete with the better players. It would change every year. People in small towns would get to see golf even if the top players did not compete."

At the same time May ruled out a report that he was quitting the tournament field "because of business reasons."

Ninety-Odd Golfers To Tee Off In Masters Tomorrow

Field Will Be Cut To Forty Low Friday

No Foreign Player Has Won At Augusta In 21 Tournaments

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Peter Thomson, who played golf on four continents in every imaginable kind of weather, glanced at the weak sunlight bathing the Augusta National Course Tuesday and said:

"If it stays this good, we should have a good tournament. But I've been wondering if there was good weather anywhere."

The well - knit Australian star, three times winner of the British Open championship, summed up the feeling of the 90-odd players who are scheduled to start Thursday in the 22nd Masters Tournament.

Weather Not Ideal

Since the winter tour began in January, they have seen very little ideal golf weather. Thomson joined the tour just in time to sit out three days of rain trying to get the New Orleans Open started. He has been trying to reach top form ever since.

The broad, 6,850-yard Augusta National Course has been "playing long" in pro terminology, but practice round scores have been good because players could hit boldly and bang putts straight at the pins.

Japan's Torakici (Pete) Nakamura, a phenomenal putter on slow or rough greens, has had the galleries agog, shooting a 69 Monday and following up with an extra nine which included a hole in one.

Reduce Field Friday

But the players who have been here before feel that Nakamura will be lucky to survive the 36-hole cutoff Friday night, when the field is reduced to the low 40.

"Just wait until the wind dries out those greens and they're shaved down for the tournament," they say. "If he keeps on banging those putts then, he'll knock them clear off into the sand."

Thomson, who placed fifth in last year's Masters, admittedly plays well on the Augusta National course and is regarded as the strongest challenger among 14 foreign entries.

No foreign player ever has won the Masters, and the chances are they'll be overpowered by the hand-picked list of American pros who annually compete in the first blue ribbon event of the U.S golf season.

Clark Makes Spirited Bid For St. Louis Varsity Job

Phil Was One-Man Bullpen At Houston

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 1 — (INS) — A workhorse right-hander who has progressed steadily up the professional baseball ladder since he started out on the Albany (Ga.) Club in 1951 is making a spirited bid for a St. Louis Cardinal varsity job.

He is tobacco-chewing Phil Clark, a 6-3, 185-pounder who was a sensation on the Redbirds' Houston farm club last season.

Phil, born in Albany on Oct. 3, 1932, was virtually a one-man bullpen as relief pitcher in 1957.

The drawling Georgian appeared in 63 regular-season games for Houston last year; then he hurled in 14 more games during the Dixie playoff series, won by the Buffs.

Sinker-Ball Hurler

Clark, a sinker-ball specialist who boasts good control and a world of mound poise and nerve, posted a 16-6, won-lost mark and an outstanding earned-run average of 1.83.

His pitching in the playoffs was instrumental in bringing the Dixie series title to Houston for the second straight time. It marked the first time a Texas League team had won the Dixie Classic twice in a row in 32 years.

After an 18-7 showing in his first season in pro ball, Phil served a two-year "hitch" in the Army. Returning to the baseball "wars," he moved right on up the ladder, climaxing his performances with the fine showing as a Buff in '57.

The Cards are in need of bullpen help, and general manager Bing Devine has been impressed with his work in spring training. The Redbirds' yearling front-office boss said in commenting on Clark:

Confident Reliefer

"You know how I felt about him before he got here. He's a cold customer who doesn't get excited—the type of confident guy you want as a reliefer."

Phil, who likes to have a chew in his left jaw, says he throws a little of everything—a curve, fast ball, palm ball for a change-up, knuckler and slider.

"The batter," he observed, "can't wait for any particular pitch from me, because I don't have a certain way of pitching to any batter."

Athletics' Urban Beats Tigers, 4-1

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Kansas City beat Detroit 4-1 in an exhibition game Tuesday after Jack Urban held the Tigers scoreless for eight innings.

The Athletics got all their runs in the fifth off Billy Hoeft but loose Detroit fielding was mostly to blame.

Vic Power singled. Woody Held got on and Power moved to second on Reno Bertoia's throwing error. Bill Tuttle singled Power home. Harry Chiti's single scored Held and sent Tuttle to third. Milt Graff singled and scored Tuttle. Chiti was out on Urban's attempted sacrifice. Hoeft tried to pick his rival pitcher off first base and Graff scampered home when the throw went into right field.

SCOTTSDALE, Airz. (AP) — San Francisco batters collected just three hits off Baltimore pitching Tuesday but paralayed them into a 4-1 exhibition victory over the Orioles.

Milt Pappas, 18-year-old right-hander, started for Baltimore and gave up two hits and three runs in five innings. Jerry Walker, also a righthander, worked two innings and Ken Lehman finished up.

Jim Busby's single opened the Baltimore seventh. With one out, Ronnie Hansen walked and Bert Hamric, batting for Walker, singled to fill the bases. Gardner flied to Willie Mays with Busby scoring after the catch. Bob Boyd hit into a force out to end the innings.

Shaw Tops In Winter Loop, May Prove Top Tiger Rookie

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla. — Probably the best pitcher in the majors as spring training opened was a 24-year-old rookie who had never won a major league game.

The selection, Robert John (Buck) Shaw, is based simply on the fact that Shaw was hot off the winter baseball circuit where his 14-5 record in the Cuban loop was the best and won him the most valuable player award.

Actually, of course, Shaw is an untried rookie with his complete major league record tied up in 10 innings pitched for the Tigers late last year after he was purchased from the Charleston club.

His winter-time pitching in the Caribbean series was enough to make the Tiger brass rate this young righthander as probably the club's most outstanding young pitcher in camp.

Signed to a Tiger contract by Ray Garland while he was in his soph year at St. Lawrence college, the handsome young Shaw almost went to the Cleveland Indians instead.

He received offers from a flock of clubs but the Indians gave him the best offer, a $5,000 bonus plus the promise of $15,000 if he made the majors. But Bob liked the Tigers and figured he'd have a better chance to break in with them because Cleveland then had an all-star pitching staff.

Shaw has been in the minor leagues for five years. His record is not excitable except that he has come on in the last year, winning six in a row for Charleston and pitching 39 innings without an earned-run and then adding a fine winter-time pitching mark to that.

Bob Shaw

Born in the Bronx, N.Y., Shaw attended Garden City High and Kimball Union Academy before going to St. Lawrence U. He played varsity football and baseball, helped along the way by his dad, who is director of physical education at Bryant High in Long Island city.

Shaw broke in with Jamestown in 1953 where he had a 10-3 mark. Before being brought up by the Tigers late last year he was 8-4 for Charleston.

Cards Stop Boston, 4-3

Beat Dave Sisler, Snap 8-Game String

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Wally Moon opened and closed scoring for the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday as they ended the Boston Red Sox's string of eight consecutive victories 4-3.

Moon doubled off Boston's Dave Sisler to open a three-run Redbird fifth in which B. G. Smith, Hobie Landrith and Lindy McDaniel singled.

THE UNFAITHFUL DOG

ONCE UPON A TIME there was a very fickle Fido who would switch masters at the drop of a dog biscuit. "Why doesn't he hitch his wagging to one star?" other canines whined. "He's no more loyal than a cat." Then one day Fido loped into his Mercury Dealer's and bought a brand-new Mercury.

He got a Great Dane size trade-in allowance—and bought at a price under 42 models of the "low-price 3." Now he's the most loyal Mercury owner ever.

Brooks Is 7th Jockey To Ride 3,000 Winners

Steve Is Presented Memento After Race

HALLANDALE, Fla., April 1 (INS) — Veteran Jockey Steve Brooks today became the seventh rider in racing history to boot home 3,000 winners, scoring aboard a two-year-old filly named Tempest Tossed in the third race at Gulfstream Park.

Steve Brooks

The 37-year-old Brooks thus joins riding greats Johnny Longden, Eddie Arcaro, Ted Atkinson, John Adams, Ralph Neves and Willie Shoemaker in the exclusive "3,000 club."

"I've had many a thrill, but this is the greatest," said the beaming Brooks during post-race ceremonies in the winner's circle.

Brooks was given an ovation by patrons of the Hallandale track when his feat was announced to the crowd.

On July 14, 1951, he was aboard Calumet Farm's famed Citation when the horse won the Hollywood Gold Cup to become the richest thoroughbred in racing history with earnings of $1,085,760.

Jockey Contreras Has Four Winners At Lincoln Downs

Contreras won aboard Rodman ($17.80) in the second race to complete a $154.00 daily double, Russell Dancer ($3.20 in the fourth, Man Of Steel ($11.40) in the eighth, and No Defeat ($8.40) in the ninth.

He was out of the money on Illuminate in the fifth race, and finished fourth with Harbash in the featured seventh.

Everett Lowrance's Mr. Marcey regained the lead 70 yards from the finish and pulled away to a length triump in the $3,000 Johnston Purse before a crowd of 6,582.

Mr. Marcey splashed through a sloppy track to defeat J. K. Houssel's Slammin' Harp in the seven furlong test for 3-year-olds. The time was 1:30 2/5.

Washington Beats Dodgers In Tenth

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Shortstop Charley Neal's bobble of Norm Zauchin's grounder enabled Albie Pearson to score from second base with one out in the 10th inning and give Washington a 7-6 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday.

The Senators produced four hits in the ninth inning against Johnny Podres to score twice and tie the game at 6-6. Pearson opened the last of the 10th with a single and with one out Ron Negray walked Jim Lemon. Neal then booted Zauchin's grounder.

The Runner Wins 7th At Jamaica

The 3-year-old daughter of Olympia-First Flame, ridden by Sam Boulmetis, defeated six 3-year-old fillies in the moderate time of 1:05 2/5 for five and a half furlongs.

Elmendorf's Two Cent Stamp was second by two lengths over Jan Burke's Best of Show, the favorite.

Second choice with the crowd of 21,229, The Runner returned across the board mutuels of $6.80, $3.50 and $2.40. Two Cent Stamp paid $3.60 and $2.30 and Best of Show was $2.50 to show.

It was the second winner of the day for Jockey Boulmetis, who also rode Louis P. Doherty's Behead to victory as the $9.80 second choice in a five furlong whirl for maiden 2-year-old colts.

Boulmetis shared riding honors with red-hot Ismael Valenzuela, who booted home Ellen Faith at $10.00 and Hello Janie at $5.50.

D'Alesandro Asks PGA To Restore Open

Eastern Golf Event Sought This Year

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro asked the Professional Golfers Assn. Tuesday to reactivate the Eastern Open tournament this summer to fill a gap caused by cancellation of the Tam O'Shanter.

George S. May, promoter of the Chicago tournament, called off this year's event Monday night in a financial dispute with the PGA. The Tam dates were the last two weeks in July.

The PGA dropped the Eastern Open at Baltimore from its tournament circuit after eight years. It gave as the reason a date and geographical conflict with the PGA championship in Philadelphia which ends July 26.

Word of the Tam O'Shanter cancellation prompted D'Alesandro to wire J. Edwin Carter, the PGA tournament manager, and Thomas W. Crane, executive secretary.

"Baltimore hereby renews request for 1958 dates for ninth annual Eastern Open Tournament," he said. "Cancellation Tam tournament should not only make this possible but desirable."

Steve Bilko Sparks Redlegs To 9-2 Win

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Big Steve Bilko batted in four runs with two homers Tuesday to lead the Cincinnati Redlegs to a 9-2 exhibition game victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Curt Simmons turned back Cincinnati in order until the fourth inning when Vada Pinson beat out a bunt and scored two outs later on Bilko's first home run over the right field wall. Then consecutive doubles by Dan Morejon and Dutch Dotterer made it 3-0.

Alex Grammas singled to open the seventh and went to second on a sacrifice by Joe Padilla. Stan Palys batted for starting pitcher Hal Jeffcoat and walked. Pinson scored Grammas with the third of his three consecutive hits. Roy McMillan singled for two more runs, then Bilko smashed his second homer.

Impressive, Not Moving

Du Pont's "A Tale of Two Cities" opened with Charles Dickens' own words: "It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of reason, it was the age of foolishness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair. In London the people prospered and enjoyed a troubled peace, in Paris they starved and dreamed of revolution."

Right away you are reminded that the canvas is going to be broad, perhaps broader than live television can tackle. Two cities, two emotional climates, two cultures and a whale of a lot of story with Dickens' usual rich proliferation of characters. To compress it into an hour and a half and get the dozens of settings and crowds into Studio 61 was a vastly ambitious undertaking and David Susskind, who produced it, and Robert Mulligan, who staged it are to be congratulated upon getting away with it at all.

But, I must confess that I wasn't greatly swayed by this tremendously emotional story. I found myself admiring Mr. Mulligan for his wonderfully ingenious suggestions of a mob and of space in the storming of the Bastille. I was impressed with the instantaneous contrasts in mood when the action switched from a public flogging in Paris to a wedding in London, from "the best of times to the worst of times" all in an instant.

There were some of the most flagrantly emotional scenes in all literature, Mr. Dickens never having been accused of dramatic restraint exactly. In fact, Mr. Mulligan feels that if Dickens were alive today he would probably be writing for live television. There is not much in heart-wringing left out, for example, in the courtroom scene. "If anyone in this courtroom has reason to hate the form of government you citizens have overthrown it is surely I. For eighteen years I was incarcerated in the Bastille, that monument to injustice which the citizens of Paris are even now tearing down, stone by accursed stone."

A great speech, a great scene, a great succession of scenes but it left me, while admiring, curiously unmoved. I think there were a number of reasons for this. The scenes were swift, too swift for emotional preparation. For instance, the famous scene where Carton substitutes himself for Darnay in prison which means his certain death was done so swiftly and expertly that it left no time for emotion.

The acting by an enormously impressive cast was technically sure-footed but very dry-eyed and cool for that rampaging emotional holocaust of Dickens. Dickens used to move himself to cataracts of tears writing these tremendous scenes and I have an idea he would have been a little exasperated by those coolly competent actors. Even Agnes Moorehead as the venomous and implacable Madama DeFarge, for all her piercing cries, left me unscarred.

Eric Portman, I guess, came closest to the Dickens spirit as the dear old father and the scene where his mind came unhinged near the end ("I must finish my shoes! What will happen if I don't finish my shoes?") was genuinely touching. Rosemary Harris was lovely (a word she must be taking an acute dislike to) as Lucy Manette and Fritz Weaver was properly ominous as Barsad.

Denholm Elliot was adequate as Charles Darnay, a role where it is difficult to be more than that. James Donald, I thought, was splendid as the sour but heroic Sydney Carton, the most interesting character in the book, but he was not an inspired choice and it's just possible that you must have an inspired choice for this part or the viewer winds up not caring enough.

Or perhaps it was the very size of the thing that I missed — a real shot of London or Paris, a real crowd, a real castle or palace, something bigger than a twenty-one screen can manage. Somewhere, somehow, the vitality was missing. It was a very expert costume drama whose people left me untouched.

ORDINANCE NO. 2081

AN ORDINANCE OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND, ENTITLED, "AN ORDINANCE TO REPEAL CHAPTER 2, SECTIONS 1 TO 10 OF THE ORDINANCES OF THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, TITLED 'DOGS,' AND, IN LIEU THEREOF TO ENACT A NEW CHAPTER 2, TO BE ENTITLED 'DOGS,' AND PROVIDING FOR A PENALTY FOR VIOLATION OF THE SAME."

WHEREAS, by Chapter 723 of the Acts of the General Assembly of 1957, the duties normally performed by the Humane Officer of the City of Cumberland have been assumed by and delegated to that person or persons who, from time to time, shall fill the office of Allegany County Dog Wardens; and

WHEREAS, the law setting forth the duties of said Dog Warden is sufficiently broad to cover the City of Cumberland; and

WHEREAS, there are still certain activities concerning which it is felt authority should be specifically given to the person or persons who may be filling the position of Dog Warden for Allegany County, so as to enable them to cope with specific situations identified with urban areas.

NOW, THEREFORE:

SECTION 1: BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL OF CUMBERLAND, That Chapter 2, Sections 1 to 10 of the Ordinances of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, titled "Dogs," be and is hereby repealed and in lieu thereof, a new chapter 2, to be entitled "Dogs" is hereby enacted.

SECTION 2: AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That it shall be unlawful for any person to permit dogs owned by them to run at large on any public streets or alleys within the City Limits of Cumberland, and that any person or persons who may from time to time be fulfilling the duties of the office of Allegany County Dog Warden be and is hereby given the authority by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, to have complete control and authority concerning the control of dogs running at large within the City Limits of the City of Cumberland, and the right to seize said dogs and to hold said seized animals in the same manner as is provided by the Public Local Laws for Allegany County, Maryland, and for the disposition of said animals, pursuant to the Public Local Laws of Allegany County, Maryland, and for the purposes of this Ordinance, dogs shall be considered as running at large when not under the immediate control of some person while on any of the streets or alleys or public grounds within the Corporate Limits of Cumberland.

SECTION 4: AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That the Allegany County Dog Wardens be and are hereby authorized to bear arms within the limits of the City of Cumberland, for the purpose of executing their duties and to discharge fire arms, if necessary, to destroy animals who give all reasonable appearances of being a threat to human life or property.

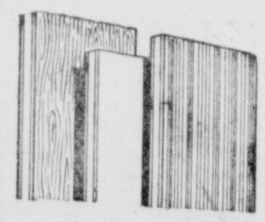

SECTION 5: AND BE IT FURTHER ORDAINED, That any person or persons obstructing or interfering with the Dog Wardens in the performance of their duties, shall, upon conviction before the Police Magistrate of Cumberland, be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) and not more than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) and in default of the payment thereof, may be confined in the City Jail or County Jail for not less than ten (10) or more than thirty (30) days.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Clothes-Buying Sense

It isn't the money that you spend but the time and thought that you spend in planning a wardrobe that determine the elegance and the chic that you achieve. Here are a half-dozen factors in smart buying:

Do you always shop alone? It is difficult not to be swayed by the enthusiastic — or impulsive thoughts — of a friend. When you shop alone, it is easier to make cool appraisals and to adhere to your previous plans.

Do you know how you really look, instead of just how you wish to look? It takes a good amount of figure study and acquaintance with your own coloring to see yourself as you really are.

Do you make it a rule never to buy any accessory or any article of clothing unless you can wear it with at least three costumes? You limit the effectiveness of your wardrobe the moment you break this rule. You also lose in the identification factor and personality quality that springs from a wellrelated wardrobe.

Do you have a definite plan? Unless there is a theme and scheme to your buying, you're not making your clothes dollars extend to their fullest buying capacity. In a planned wardrobe of well-chosen clothes, only a few items need to be retired and replaced in any one season.

Do you follow the trend in fashion so that you can always choose a style that is waxing and not waning?

Do you refuse to be tempted by any style, no matter how popular it may be, if you know it cannot be more than passably wearable for you? To settle for less than real figure flattery and color becomingness is a charm extravagance that no one can afford!

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 1 — (INS) When Anna Magnani was in Hollywood for "Wild Is the Wind" she told me that she had just read "Orpheus Descending," Tennessee Williams' play, and she would like to do it on the stage. She gets her wish, only instead of the stage she will star in the motion picture version. The Tempestuous Anna will have Anthony Franciosa as her co-star and Sidney Lumet as her director.

Thank goodness it will be made right here in Hollywood in late August or early September for United Artists. "Rose Tattoo," another Tennessee Williams play, also starred the Italian actress.

After the preview of "Indiscreet" at the Picwood Theatre a few nights ago, Cary Grant, Jack Warner and director Stanley Donen talked at Romanoff's for hours. "Indiscreet" went over like a million and the laughs were hearty and spontaneous. Everyone who saw it is sure that Cary and Stanley, who made this as an independent feature for their Grandson company have a hit.

"Indiscreet" will be released by Warner Bros. and Jack wants Cary to make another picture with Ingrid Bergman. Ingrid told Cary that any time he and Donen had a story she would be happy to co-star with him. So as soon as Warners comes up with a property it will be an encore for Ingrid, Cary and Stanley.

Patti Page joins the Ray Ryan contingent in Ft. Worth to promote the Desert Circus in Palm Springs. She leaves tomorrow night after her show "The Big Record" in New York and flies to Texas. From there she'll fly back to California to spend Easter with Charlie O'Curran.

While Patti was in Hollywood over the weekend she agreed to read the script of "Student Body." She told me that Jerry Wald would like to have her play a dramatic role instead of being just a singer in motion pictures.

I'm sure a part of the money Harold Hecht made from the Hecht - Hill - Lancaster company has gone into valuable paintings. At his cocktail party all of us admired a Greco, a Modigliani, a Goya and other priceless treasures.

Gloria (Mrs. Hecht) was a charming hostess and her chemise gown made in Rome was sent especially for this party. David Niven, who leaves shortly on a trip to promote "Around the World in 80 Days," admired the paintings as did the Tony Bennetts, who came with Jimmy McHugh.

Burt Lancaster was an early guest and left before I arrived. So did the Tony Curtises and Jerry Wald & David Lean, the Academy Award winning director, had quite a coterie around him congratulating him.

Just a few of us who knew Suzanne since she was a baby were invited to the dinner honoring Suzi who has grown into a charming young lady.

Later we went on to Ruth and Sol Siegel's. They gave a dinner in honor of Sol's birthday on the 31st and Mrs. Walter Lang's natal day, April 1.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Market Launches Second Quarter Slightly Lower

Losses of key stocks went from fractions to around a point. The declines centered in the heavy industrials and rails. Utilities and some other safer "defensive" issues did rather well.

News of deepening output declines in the steel and automobile industries emphasized the recession.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 40 cents to $161.50 with the industrials down $1.10, the rails down 70 cents and the utilities up 30 cents to a new high for 1958.

Of 1,137 issues traded, declines totaled 633 and advances 257.

New lows for the year outnumbered new highs by 45 to 30. It was the first time the ratio favored the lows since Feb. 25.

Volume was 2,070,000 shares compared with 2,050,000 yesterday.

Of the 16 most active stocks, 8 fell, 4 rose and 4 were unchanged.

Olin Mathieson was the most active stock, off 1⅛ at 34⅛ on 32,100 shares as it continued under pressure. Some fears of dividend cuts were expressed. Chrysler, also the subject of pessimistic discussion, dropped 1⅛ to 49 on 31,400 shares and was second. U. S. Steel was third, falling ⅜ to 57 on 30,900 shares.

Three Killed In Headon Crash

Three persons were killed instantly yesterday afternoon when two cars collided on Pennsylvania Route 53 about 11 miles south of Somerset .

One of the victims was identified by police as Melvin Carlin, 42, of New York State. The two other victims had not been positively identified early today.

Another man and two children were in the car being operated south on Route 53 by Carlin. The children, authorities said, were uninjured, although the other man was taken to Somerset Community Hospital with a fractured nose. His condition apparently is not serious.

Authorities are attempting to identify a man and woman who were also killed in the crash as they were traveling north on Route 53.

Robert Halverson, coroner of Somerset County, who was assisting in trying to identify the two other victims, said they were either from Fayette County, Pa., or nearby West Virginia.

Halverson said the other car was registered in the name of a man from Farmington, Pa. He said the man had loaned the car to a couple from Brandenville, W. Va. Halverson declined to give any names.

Hoppenwasser was riding in the car occupied by Carlin. The latter's two sons, John, 15, and Robert, 11, escaped injury, the hospital said.

Presumed relatives were notified and were on their way to a funeral home in Rockwood to assist in identifying the victims.

Mr. Halverson, who said one victim was identified as Carlin, said that he was either from New York City or Scarsdale as two addresses were on his person.

Wanted To Join Rebels In Cuba

Three youths arrested near Winchester, Va., Monday night in connection with the armed robbery of $40 and the auto of a Mannington, W. Va. groceryman, last night were lodged in Preston County Jail in Kingwood, quite a distance from their destination, Cuba.

They are Forrest Lipscomb, 20, of Thomas, W. Va., Patrick Patterson, 18, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Harry E. Voelker, 23, of McKeesport, Pa. Virginia troopers and Winchester police, who arrested the trio at a roadblock on U. S. 50 west of Winchester, said the youths informed them they were bound for Cuba to join the rebel forces of Fidel Castro.

West Virginia authorities at Kingwood yesterday swore out warrants of armed robbery against Lipscomb and Patterson, according to a sheriff's deputy at the Preston County Jail, who said the warrants were obtained from Justice of the Peace S. W. Pritt.

A preliminary hearing will probably be held today in order that bond may be set, the deputy said. Virginia authorities released the three youths to West Virginia authorities after the trio waived extradition.

"We're going to join Castro in Cuba," Lipscomb told a reporter. "We'll use these weapons until we can get something better." Police found in their possession a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun and some shells, a .22 caliber revolver, a bayonet, a hunting knife, a set of throwing knives and a hacksaw.

Virginia State Trooper Percy S. Click said Lipscomb and Patterson were hitchhiking near Silver Lake, W. Va., where they were given a ride by David Brown, Route 1, Mannington, W. Va.

The trooper said the pair robbed Brown of $40, took his car and left him on the road. The pair then went to Lipscomb's house where they picked up Voelker and their luggage, Trooper Click said.

Stolen Car Found Damaged

An automobile stolen here Sunday night was located yesterday in a wooded area between Mt. Savage and Wellersburg, Pa.

The auto had been damaged extensively, according to the owner, Neal Wilson, 424 Warwick Avenue, who said both front wheels of the car were missing.

A farmer who lives in the area informed State Police that the car was parked in a lane near the woods. Mr. Wilson said a crowbar apparently had been used in an attempt to get into the trunk.

The inside of the car was damaged extensively, a front vent window was smashed and the ignition was knocked out of the dashboard. The culprit apparently had crossed wires to start the motor.

Mr. Wilson said the contents of a couple of brief cases were scattered about the inside of the car. A flashlight, glasses and other items were missing from the glove compartment.

18 More Register For Primary Vote

Touring registrars signed up 18 more prospective new voters yesterday for the May 20 primary election.

At Shaft, Miss Bessie R. Baird and John J. Zapf, the deputy registrars who are touring the county, signed up 13 residents, all Republicans. Six were men and seven women. They also stopped at Wrights Crossing to register one Republican man.

Last night at Zihlman, there were four registrants, split evenly between the sexes and the major parties. One man and one woman signed up as Republicans and one man and one woman registered as Democrats.

Today, Miss Baird and Mr. Zapf will sit at the Ellerslie Community Building from 2 until 5 p. m. and at the Corriganville Fire Hall from 6 until 9 p. m. Tomorrow they will be at the LaVale Fire Hall from 2 until 5 p. m. and again from 6 until 9 p. m.

Manson M. Durr has filed an equity suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against Isabel M. Durr.

Vets Cautioned To Keep Insurance

GI insurance policyholders who plan to re-enter military service should not drop their policies in the belief they will receive the so-called "free $10,000 insurance" or indemnity.

R. T. Brown, acting manager of the Baltimore Regional Office of the Veterans Administration, notified the local contact representative that the indemnity coverage ended more than a year ago on January 1, 1957.

An increasing number of veterans who are returning to service are making this mistake, Mr. Brown said. They apparently do not know that the "free insurance" is no longer available in the armed forces. It was abolished by the Survivors' Benefits Act, which substituted increased compensation rates for service-connected deaths.

Brown warned that veterans who drop their insurance near the end of a five-year term period may lose it entirely.

Judge Harris Overrules Dismissal Move

Files Opinions In Related Cases

Opinions in two related damage suits resulting from a fatal automobile accident last April near Green Spring, W. Va., in which three teen-age boys were fatally injured were filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court by Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris in overruling motions to dismiss the two cases.

The more detailed opinion was filed in the case brought by Fred H. Anderson, administrator of the estate of Loy James Wagner, vs. Dorothy Wagner Patch, administratrix of the estate of Bruce Lee Wagner.

The declaration in this case alleges that on or about April 27, 1957, Bruce Lee Wagner was operating an automobile in Hampshire County, W. Va., proceeding from Green Spring toward Oldtown. Loy James Wagner was a passenger in the car operated by his brother. It struck a tree and both Wagner boys and another youth were fatally injured.

Bruce C. Wagner was owner of the automobile which his son was driving and the father had a public liability insurance policy on the vehicle. The two deceased boys and Allen A. Wagner, who was injured, were born to the marriage of Bruce C. Wagner and Dorothy Wagner Patch, now absolutely divorced.

The motion to dismiss is based on the defendant's contention that this action in effect is between a parent and child and is not maintainable in the State of Maryland.

Judge Harris explains in his seven-page opinion in this case that the underlying purpose of the laws and the doctrine to prevent suits between parents and their children is to preserve the harmony of the family relationship. He decides that there is no basis to invoke this rule in this case. Therefore, he overrules the motion to dismiss.

The second and less detailed opinion was filed in the suit brought by Allen A. Wagner, an infant, by Bruce C. Wagner, parent, natural guardian and next friend, vs. Dorothy Wagner Patch, administratrix of the estate of Bruce Lee Wagner.

Judge Harris suggests in this opinion that if tried, the two cases would be consolidated.

Again in this case, counsel for the defendant contends in his motion to dismiss that the action is between a parent and child and is not maintainable in this state. In view of his opinion in the other case, Judge Harris rules that this action is between brother and brother and not between parent and child. But if it were between parent and child, it would be maintainable for the same reasons as he stated in the other opinion.

In both cases, Judge Harris signed orders overruling the motions for dismissal.

Union To Forego Wage Boost Bid

A local craft union announced this week it is not going out for a wage increase this year.

It is Local 489, Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, which has its headquarters in the Allegany Labor Temple here.

Charles L. Cross, business agent, said members of the local decided at a recent meeting, to renew the present contract with plumbing and heating contractors on May 1.

He said the union will not, at present, seek a wage increase since members felt, with conditions as they are, they would rather encourage work.

Conference Planned For Health Nurses

Miss Helen L. Fisk, head of the Division of Public Health Nursing of the State Health Department, will visit the Allegany County Health Department today.

She will meet with the 13 public health nurses of the department during her visit.

Basket-Weaving Develops Research, Artistry

Income Tax Deadline Is April 15

You have less than two weeks in which to file your 1957 federal and state income tax returns—the deadline for both being April 15.

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service, which maintains offices in the Post Office, said yesterday taxpayers will be wise to visit the office for assistance as soon as possible.

At present, business is rather slow, although during the last week or 10 days it has a tendency to pick up. The offices on the second floor of the Post Office will be open on Good Friday this week.

The offices also be open Monday through Friday prior to the April 15 deadline, from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m. daily.

Auditors are also assisting residents who are filing returns of their Maryland state income taxes at the local office of the State Comptroller, 9 Market Street.

Office hours are from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Edward V. Welsh, manager of the office here, said anyone desiring information on filing tax returns may call his office, PA 4-3223.

EASTER SEAL LUCKY BUCKS NEEDED NOW

The next 222 bucks mailed for Easter Seals to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children will be lucky for crippled children in this section because that's the number of dollars needed to make the 1958 seal campaign total $6,500.

Over 23,000 residents of Allegany County received Easter Seals in the mail early last month, and a check at headquarters yesterday showed $6,278 had been received in returns.

Much more than $6,500 is needed, however, to finance the treatment of crippled and handicapped children in this section, and it is hoped that at least $12,000 will be received during the Easter season.

Don't hold back if you have not mailed your money for the seals. It's possible that the bucks that haven't been returned are the dollars the League for Crippled Children needs to meet this year's budget.

Zoning Ruling Reversed By Appeals Court

Award To Local Man Is Upheld

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Court of Appeals said Tuesday that existence of zoning law violations in a neighborhood is no reason for permitting further violations.

It reversed a St. Mary's County decision which permitted the Lexington Park Theater Co. to extend its building into a 25-foot back yard and use the second floor for apartment dwellings.

The county Zoning and Planning Commission had refused such permission but was reversed by the Board of Zoning Appeals. The board said the commission had "overlooked or condoned" other minor violations in the neighborhood and acted arbitrarily and capriciously in the theater case.

Circuit Court upheld the appeals board, but the Court of Appeals ruled against them.

"Ill-Advised"

"This court has held that it is not proper to consider the existence of surrounding ill-advised or illegal variances as grounds for granting additional variances," it said.

It said that under the county's zoning ordinance the theater company would have to have shown "unwarranted hardship and injustice" from zoning laws in order to have been granted a variance and that it failed to do this.

The zoning commission had approved use of the upstairs of the building for offices but not for apartments. The downstairs contain a retail store and lobby for the theater which is in an adjoining building.

Upholds Judgment

In another opinion filed the court upheld an Allegany County Circuit Court judgment awarding 60 per cent permanent partial disability to Clarence Mellott of Cumberland

Mellott, a road construction worker, slipped and fell while lifting a pipe in April, 1955. His employer, the Baughman Contracting Co., claimed that his back trouble was largely due to a previous injury. The Industrial Accident Commission had awarded him only 5 per cent permanent partial disability from the 1955 injury.

The Court of Appeals said there was legally sufficient medical evidence for the jury to arrive at a larger finding and agree with Mellott's contention that his previous back injury, in another location of the back, had healed.

Jaycee Meeting Is Postponed

Basket Weaving Used In Modern Teaching Method

By F. ALLAN WEATHERHOLT
News Staff Writer

A project in modern teaching, designed to help children learn by arousing their natural curiosity, has just been completed with excellent results at Northeast School.

Principal Raymond Skidmore and Theodore Foote, art supervisor for the Board of Education, agree that Miss Betty Hinzman, sixth grade teacher and her class of busy sixth graders have enjoyed an unusual learning experience and have demonstrated how much can be learned from a single project.

This particular project—basket weaving—was more than just the mechanical processes of weaving baskets.

Miss Hinzman and one of her pupils, Karen Minnick, organized a display which included small bottles of shellac, coping saws, brushes, plywood, cement, jute, reed, raffia, bottles of water and finished baskets. The finished baskets were borrowed from students who wove them at another school.

As the display began to arouse the curiosity of the class, many questions were raised. These questions were recorded and organized on a work sheet for future reference.

This led to the main purpose of the project. Students were encouraged to use reference materials and resource people and agreed upon methods of procedure.

When the questions were finally organized the sixth graders requested Mr. Foote to help answer some of them, so an appointment was made for him to visit the school.

During the panel, and discussion with Mr. Foote, the class decided they needed to know more about the sources of materials to be used and the characteristics of the materials.

The next step was to go to reference books and reference materials. Encyclopedias, weaving books and other works were consulted, with all members of the class doing some phase of the investigation.

The position will be open April 15 when Anthony Saeli, manager of the local chamber since 1951, assumes his duties as executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of Alexandria, Va.

Officials said a committee headed by Henry W. Price, national councilor, has narrowed applicants down to three, all experienced Chamber executives.

Mr. Price and Charles S Catherman Jr., president, with C. William Gilchrist and Earl D. Chaney, will be official delegates to the U. S. Chamber meeting and are making arrangements to meet the applicants during the Washington meeting.

Plans are also being made to have the applicants stop here on their way to or from the meeting, to meet the full committee.

Police Probe Garage Fire

City police are investigating a fire which destroyed several porch and window awnings in a garage at the rear of 516 Louisiana Avenue yesterday afternoon.

Norman Wallace reported to police he discovered the awnings —which he had stored in his concrete block garage — afire when he returned home from a short trip about 4:30 p. m.

He was able to extinguish the blaze with a water hose, but reported the awnings destroyed. The sash of a window in the garage also was badly charred by the flames.

Officer John Powers investigated and reported finding evidence which indicated the fire may have been deliberately set.

Mr. Wallace told the officer he had left home about a half hour earlier and that nothing was amiss at that time.

Schools To Be Out; Drivers Urged To Be Careful

During the latter part of this week and for the first few days next week school children will be enjoying their annual Easter vacation.

Frostburg's Mayor James Re-elected

Three Councilmen Returned; Evans Defeated By Kenney

Mayor Joseph E. James and three incumbent city councilmen were returned to office yesterday in Frostburg's municipal election which saw Councilman James H. Evans defeated in his bid for re-election.

In a light election which saw only 1,238 ballots cast, compared to about 2,800 in the last (1956) municipal election, Mayor James soundly whipped his opponent, Dr. Adam D. Baer, in the mayoral race, 764 to 474.

Unofficial returns are:

For Mayor:

Joseph E. James	764
Dr. Adam D. Baer	474

For Councilman:

T. William Preston	891
Herbert E. Loar	837
William W. Sluss Jr.	805
James P. Kenney	670
James H. Evans	516
Kenneth A. Lowery	307
G. Victor Lammert	213

Mayor James was re-elected for his second two-year term, having decided to run after first indicating he would not seek the office again. Although winner of his own race handily, Mayor James trailed three of the councilmen in the total number of votes received.

Mr. Kenney, the only new member of the council, is employed at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory as a pipefitter and plumber. He served seven years as water superintendent for the city and previously worked for four years in the Water Department before becoming its head. He stated when filing for candidacy that he wanted to improve the water distribution system of Frostburg.

Councilman Herbert Loar is a former state and county tax collector, is owner and manager of Loar's Market on West Main Street in Frostburg, and has been a director for 24 years of the Equitable Savings and Loan Society.

He was elected to office for the second time in yesterday's balloting.

Appointees Elected

The remaining two councilmen returned to office, William Preston and William Sluss, were elected after both had been appointed to the city council. In succeeding this time, Mr. Preston, who was appointed to office replacing the late William Eberly, rebounded from his defeat as a candidate two years ago.

He is the present water commissioner and was the first incumbent to file for election. Mr. Preston serves on the board of directors of the Frostburg Industrial Development Company and is active in veterans' organizations.

Mr. Sluss, appointed to his present position as police commissioner last fall when G. Franklin Martens accepted the post of assistant water superintendent, formerly served as street commissioner for Frostburg.

He was once a candidate for mayor and is now associated with his father in the grocery business on West Main Street.

Newly-elected councilman Kenney was stricken ill yesterday afternoon and taken to Miners Hospital. His illness was diagnosed as appendicitis and surgery is pending, hospital attendants stated. He was reported "resting quietly" last night.

Young Paugh was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle last evening in Keyser. He is being held in the Mineral County Jail at Keyser.
